A Pleasant Bomb
Only $72,000,000
Mr. Coolidge's Work
Transplanted Gorillas

——By Arthur Brisbane——

THE STORY of the "deadly" bomb intended for New York's governor, Roosevelt, explodes, pleasantly. It was an imitation bomb, manufactured, placed and "discovered" by one whose hope was profit and a glorious memory.

"The aspiring youth that fired the Ephesian dome Outlives in fame the pious fool That rais'd it."

The aspiring gentleman that invented the Roosevelt bomb will be less fortunate.

The Ford Company statement, filed in Massachusetts yesterday, says Mr. Ford has on hand $582,629,563. Not exactly poverty, but seventy-two millions less than Ford had a year ago. This shows that it cost money to change one car to another, rip out great factories and install new machinery.

However, the Ford plant is now producing more than 7000 passenger cars and trucks per day. That $72,000,000 will soon be replaced. Two million cars a year should easily yield $100,000,000 profit, 5 per cent on two billions.

President Coolidge becomes a director in the New York Life Insurance Company in place of the late Ambassador Herrick.

Such a man as Mr. Coolidge could not remain idle. And he could with difficulty find work more useful than life insurance. It inculcates thrift, provides for widows and children.

A family of gorillas living in the Kivu district of the Congo, where they inhabited a peaceful volcano, killed by Carl Akeley, are now a "dwelling," stuffed, in the Museum of Natural History in New York.

All those that can, should see them.

Nothing could have made those gorillas, when romping around the volcano, believe that such a place as New York existed, or that they could ever go there But it does exist and they did go.

That might encourage atheists to believe that there may be something finer than New York and that we may go there, later.

The United States, producing 4600 airplanes in 1928, leads in aircraft output.

France in 1928 built only 1400 airplanes.

Great Britain sells more airplanes abroad than we do.

France, however, has five times as many fighting planes as we have. Her fighting air fleet is so big it makes Great Britain very polite.

France is the real airplane country, no matter what others may manufacture. Britain is catching up. We lag behind, but that will change.

Gentlemen of the American Defense Society, who would only accept immigrants as much as possible like the Puritans, keeping out others, say "President Hoover doesn't know as much about immigration as some of us."

Mr. Hoover knows a good deal more about immigration than the American Defense Society knows.

Former Secretary Redfield, at a luncheon given by L. J. Horowitz, to promote arbitration in place of law suits, said that the word "alloy" once meant always "inferiority"; now that stands for improvement.

Steels are made better by alloys, the mixing in of other metals.

Human races are also improved by alloys, mixtures of other human beings.

We need all kinds of humans that mix satisfactorily.

For reasons known to Providence, the Mongolians and Caucasian races do not mix well.

Those that gamble in stocks or anything else are foolish and will regret it. But the country is prosperous and business is good.

United States Steel reports at the end of March orders unfilled of 4,410,718 tons, a gain of 265,377 tons for the month. United States Steel went up $4.25 a share yesterday.

New York banks called $10,000,000 in loans for speculating in obedience to orders from "a higher source." Money went to 10 per cent.

Foreigners and big corporations are lending money at the high interest rates. Banks, obedient to orders, lend comparatively little of it.

Stuyvesant Fish sues officials that stopped his yacht, looking for liquor, of which he had none. It was a new yacht.

Mr. Fish wants to "protect the rights of yachtsmen."

Even to protect the rights of rowboats and other small craft is, or ought to be, even more important, in a republic, since there are more of them.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE POWER "GRAB"?

What do YOU think of this brazen stroke of the power interests who, with superior disdain for the people of New England, bought up in secret two sources of public information? First, lobbying; now, hoodwinking.

POWER TRUST GRABS 2 BOSTON PAPERS

The Power Trust is out to steal all municipal lighting plants in New England through its acquisition of the Boston Herald and Boston Traveler, it was charged today by Representative John A. Jones of Peabody.

"The acquiring of these two papers is wholly for propaganda purposes," he said. "Public confidence in municipal plants is to be undermined.

"To my mind, this gigantic trust threatens the very liberties of the people of the State. It is high time that the citizens be aroused to the dangers that confront them.

"The Boston Evening American, in revealing the bold move of the Power Trust in getting hold of the Herald-Traveler, has accomplished a tremendous public service. The American has brought the fight into the open.

"The Power Trust is out to gobble up and steal the municipal lighting plants in New England."

Representative Jones severely criticized the bill now in legislative committee and which, he said, is supposed to be a check on the power interests that have been flouting the regulatory authority of the Public Utilities Department.

PLOT TO SEIZE CONTROL OF ALL N. E. POWER AND LIGHT PLANTS

"The bill," he declared, "is nothing more than a slap on the wrist. A real bill should be passed, giving the municipalities the right to go into the lighting business without being subjected to lengthy and costly court litigation.

"This is bound to happen under the bill if they attempt to go into business without taking over the private plants.

"The individual members of the Massachusetts Legislature are on trial. It remains to be seen whether they are the fearless defenders of their constituency or the tools of powerful private interests."

Three Power Trustees to Control 2 Boston Papers

Representative Jones declared the municipal lighting plant in his city is in a prosperous condition and the officials expect shortly to cut the eight-cent rate of electricity down to seven cents.

The International Paper and Power Company, as told exclusively in yesterday's Boston Evening American, has purchased the controlling interest in The Boston Publishing Company, publishers of the Boston Herald and the Boston Traveler.

And the International Paper and Power Company controls the New England Power Company and many other power companies—trust subsidiaries—throughout the nation.

Sale of the Boston Publishing Company control stock was announced yesterday by W. N. Hurlbut of New York, vice-president of the International Paper Company.

According to this official, the stock has been turned over to three trustees, Philip Stockton of the Old Colony Trust Company, Sidney W. Winslow, Jr., of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation and the First National Bank, and John R. Macomber of Harris, Forbes & Co., bankers for the International Paper and Power Company.

In connection with the sale to the $300,000,000 power control concern, there was a persistent rumor in circulation about Boston today that former Governor Channing H. Cox, vice-president of the First National Bank, will be a dominant factor in the operation of the Boston Herald and the Boston Traveler.

The former Governor declared he knew nothing of the negotiations for the purchase of the Boston Publishing Company stock, and that he now had no hand in the transaction. Other than that he has business associations with the three trustees, to whom the stock has been turned over, he denied even a knowledge of the deal.

News of the newspaper grab by the Power Trust has created a stir on Beacon Hill where already back of the bill to allow cities and towns to engage in the lighting business, a bitter battle for control of lighting and power in Massachusetts, the Bay State in New England, is being waged.

The power lords scored heavily yesterday through their lobbyists when it was discovered that a joker in the redrafted city power bill referred to the committee on ways and means, has so riddled it with loopholes that it will be almost impossible for cities and towns to engage in the business.

How heavy a part the hand of the Power Trust played in the city power bill jokers is a matter of keen speculation at the State House.

The Power Trust went deep into its capacious pocket, however, to purchase controlling interest in the Boston Herald and the Boston Traveler, as it has gone deep into pocket to purchase other newspapers throughout the country.

While the Herald and Traveler are the only newspapers acquired thus far in this part of the nation by the International Paper and Power Co., it is understood that the company has been quietly conducting negotiations looking toward acquisition of other newspapers in New England.

PHILIP STOCKTON

Officials Alibi Grab of 2 Papers as Product Outlet

The alibi of officials of the International Paper Co., the paper subsidiary of the control company, is that its only concern in purchasing newspapers is to make new direct outlets for its principal product—newsprint.

In what they asserted to be proof of this contention, those in authority declared that immediately upon purchase of the Herald and Traveler stock by the International Paper Company, the newspapers' directors signed contracts calling for the purchase of 30,000 tons of International Company newsprint for the current year.

President Archibald R. Graustein declared that last year the company made a comparatively poor showing, due to curtailment of newsprint production and reduction in prices.

The International Paper and Power Company and subsidiaries reported a deficit for 1928 of $4,706,404, after allowing for depreciation, interest, reserves for taxes and all dividends.

But although its paper business fell off, its power profits increased, the figures show.

Net income before dividends was $4,353,767, or $2,206,411 less than the preferred dividend requirements.

In 1927 the net income was $5,756,499, equal after preferred dividends to $2.01 a share on 1,000,000 common shares. In that year there was a surplus after dividends of $49,583.

The total assets on December 31, 1928, amounted to $388,365,797. Current assets were $37,736,080, of which $5,738,675 was cash. Current liabilities were $38,691,646. There remained a net working capital of $19,044,434.

President Graustein said:

"Since the beginning of 1928 the company has made substantial reductions on the price of newsprint in order to meet competition, as the market was seriously weakened by over capacity of the industry.

"Lower prices and increasing consumption have created a more staple market and it is expected that there will be no necessity for further price reductions pending the restoration of a balance between supply and demand.

"Further increase in productive capacity is under construction, but it may be safely anticipated that further new construction will be very materially slackened under the prevailing low price level."

The International Paper Company completed purchase of the Herald and Traveler stock four months ago, but it was not until late yesterday that the transfer and ownership statement were recorded in the Postoffice Department in accordance with federal law.

Vice-President Hurlbut of the International Paper and Power Company, in confirming acquisition of the newspaper stock, admitted that the purchase approximated 50 per cent of the shares.

Although 50 per cent of stock is almost invariably sufficient for control in a large corporation, there are a sufficient number of other shareholders, it is understood, financially allied with the International Paper and Power Company to make control certain.

BEACON HILL GETS "INSIDE STORY" IN AMERICAN

Representative John A. Jones (left) of Peabody and Representative E. J. Kelley of Worcester were among the solons startled by the significance of the acquisition of 50 per cent of the stock of the Boston Herald and Traveler by the International Paper and Power Company, as pointed out in today's Boston Evening American. Representative Jones saw a plot to steal municipal-owned lighting plants behind the transaction.

Power and Paper Combine Is Proved by the Records

Recently the New England Power Company purchased the Worcester Electric Light Company, and, in addition, the concern owns several other lighting and power companies.

Vice-President Hurlbut denied that the International Paper Company, as an individual company or in affiliation with any other concern, is interested in the power industry in New England.

However, up to a few months ago, the International Paper Company controlled the New England Power Co., records show, as well as other large power interests.

Also, recently, the paper and power interests controlled by the International Paper Company were combined in a holding company, the present International Paper & Power Company.

Because the laws of Massachusetts did not allow the International Paper Company, which had become a foreign corporation, to hold the stock of the New England Power Company, the paper and power interest were segregated and then combined with the International Paper and Power Company.

Although technically the International Paper Company is concerned only with paper interests, its stock is virtually all owned by the International Paper & Power Company, which in turn owns a great chain of power companies.

The interest of all companies in the circle cannot help but be identical because of the intricate interlinkings.

Sidney W. Winslow, Jr., and Daniel G. Wing, a director, and Edwin W. Preston, general manager and publisher of the Boston Publishing Company, all declined today to discuss the stock deal.

The last report of the Boston Publishing Company, filed with the Secretary of State, shows that prior preference and preferred stock was wiped out by a vote of the directors, involving $2,486,000. This report is dated December 28, 1928.

This left only common stock of no par value.

The vote of the directors with regard to this is recorded as follows:

"Voted that the authorized capital stock of this company, consisting of 10,000 shares of prior preference stock of a par value of $100, and 11,000 shares of preferred stock of a par value of $100 and 20,400 shares of common stock without par value, is hereby reduced so as to consist exclusively of said 20,400 shares of stock without par value, and that the officers be and hereby are authorized and directed to execute and file with the commissioner of corporations of Massachusetts articles of amendment showing the foregoing reduction."

The last list of officers filed with the secretary of State, for the Boston Publishing Company, was as follows: Robert Lincoln O'Brien, president; William C. Wenderoth, treasurer; James Garfield, secretary; directors, E. P. Brown, 215 Lincoln st.; John L. Hall, 30 State st.; Robert L. O'Brien, E. W. Preston, Daniel G. Wing, H. F. Winslow, 30 State st.; S. W. Winslow, Jr., 205 Lincoln st.

It was only last summer that the Hearst newspapers throughout the nation laid before the American people proof after proof that the Power Trust was fast reaching a position where it could become the dominating dictator.

Official exhibits, in the form of letters, constituting part of the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of the Power Trust, were published in Hearst newspapers and they revealed an amazing system of disseminating propaganda.

Not only were skilled and smooth letter writers in the employ of the trust to influence the public toward a trusting and friendly attitude, but propaganda bureaus had been formed under disguising titles, the Hearst exposes revealed.

Even textbooks used by children in many public schools, the country had been written by men in employ of the Power Trust. It was shown by exhibits, and other workers were revealed to have succeeded in circulating propaganda through newspapers, magazines and other publications.

One exhibit, a letter by a Missouri propagandist to a fellow-propagandist in Michigan, carried these lines:

"I believe that the most important work done by the Missouri committee (the Missouri committee on public utility information), was directing the attention of the industry to textbooks in public schools. You will agree with me that it would be most unwise to give this work any publicity.

"It is a matter for executive session between leaders in the industry, writers of textbooks and printers thereof."

And there were many exhibits in which propaganda work accomplished in newspapers was commented on with satisfaction.

American Wins Beat on Herald-Traveler Sale

SCORING another victory in big news, the Boston Evening American was the ONLY paper yesterday containing the story of the purchase by the International Paper & Power Company of 50 per cent of the stock of the Boston Herald and Boston Traveler.

This was REAL news, affecting not only Massachusetts and New England, but the entire nation as well.

And you can always find the REAL news in the Boston Evening American—and read it while it IS news.

'BOLD MOVE BY POWER TRUST!' SAYS POST

An editorial appearing in today's Boston Post says:

The sale of a controlling interest in the Boston Herald and Boston Traveler to the International Paper Company, a subsidiary of the International Paper & Power Company, which controls the New England Power Company, is a blow to the principle of a free and untrammeled press.

It is also a gravely improper action on the part of a great corporation which is the dominant interest in the electric power industry of New England.

An independent, fearless press is the chief safeguard of the people's welfare and the people's rights.

At a time when we are engaged in a nation-wide controversy over the wisdom of allowing the great power resources of the nation to pass into the hands of huge combination of capital and when the power companies are charged with spending millions of dollars for propaganda in certain newspapers, colleges and public schools, the power trust of New England takes control of two of the leading newspapers.

We submit that this constitutes a grave menace to the people of Massachusetts.

We are rapidly approaching a situation here when the public must decide just how much latitude shall be allowed to the power companies of the State and how best to protect the people of Massachusetts from the extortions of any power monopoly.

The Public Utilities Commission has twice sounded a warning and called on the Legislature for protection.

Newspapers should be free to present to their readers the whole truth about the power situation without fear or favor.

Yet, the International Paper and Power Company seizes the opportunity to purchase control of two large organs of public opinion.

Is it at all likely that these newspapers, owned in great part by the Power Trust, can serve the public interest single-mindedly?

The Power Trust is seeking favors from the people of Massachusetts.

It is vitally interested in every bit of legislation concerning the electric power and light and gas industries.

Yet it is not content with receiving a square deal from an independent press. It spends many million dollars to acquire control of two of the avenues by which news reaches the public and the voters form their opinions on questions affecting their welfare.

The boldness of this transaction is exceeded only by its capacity for harm, both to the citizens of Massachusetts and the honor of the newspaper business.

Crash of Seaplanes Claims Four Lives

Rome, April 21 (AP)—Four men were killed in a crash of two seaplanes maneuvering near the Augusta seaplane drome. The planes were at a height of 300 feet when they collided and fell to the water in a tangled mass. The occupants of both planes were killed, one lieutenant and three enlisted men.

4000 SHOE WORKERS NOW OUT

The "outlaw" shoe strike in Boston assumed serious proportions today when a walkout of stitchers placed the total number of strikers, according to leaders, at 4000.

Announcement was made that employers had voted unanimously not to recognize the independent union, and had agreed to close down their factories if necessary in a fight to a finish.

The strikers filled Wells Memorial hall, on Washington st., and heard leaders who urged them to stick together for victory, telling them to collect the pay due them on Saturday, but to enter the shops in groups and not individually.

After the meeting pickets left for various factories not included in the recent injunction, with the expressed intention of bringing out other workers.

It was said that a number of smaller shops in which strikes were declared had been forced to close down, leaving some 3000 loyal employes out of work.

General Secretary-Treasurer Baine of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, which has refused to recognize the strike, said:

"The manufacturers of Boston, both open and union shop owners, met last night at the United States Hotel and voted unanimously not to recognize the independent union and, if necessary, to shut down their plants entirely. They will fight to the finish."

N. E. Power Out of It

His company has "nothing to do with the International Paper Co.," it was asserted today by Frank D. Comerford, president of the New England Power Association, in connection with the Herald-Traveler stock acquisition by the International Paper and Power Company.

"I have read the article in the Boston Evening American with regard to the acquisition of an interest in a Boston paper," said Comerford.

"The New England Power Association has nothing whatever to do with the activities of the International Paper Co.

"Any acquisition of interest in newspapers by the paper company is undoubtedly for the sole purpose of ensuring a market for the paper which it manufactures."

Ex-Gov. Baxter Backs Maine Power Bill

Augusta, Me., April 11—Ex-Gov. Percival P. Baxter today indorsed the Smith-Carlton power export bill, on which a referendum will be held, declaring it keeps control in the hands of the people.

"In an attempt to find a solution of the power export problem, I suggested an export tax under special charter provisions meant to safeguard its constitutionality, but the power companies have always been unwilling to accept a tax or admit its validity," he said.

"Now, however, they have acknowledged the right of the people to tax exported power, and have placed themselves in a position where in the future the tax can be increased or decreased to meet changing conditions.

"Under the new bill the Legislature retains control of the situation, which is in marked contrast with the platform of the Republican party adopted March, 1928, which asked that it be voted to turn and surrender its control over the water power resources within its borders.'

"The bill, as now amended, for all practical purposes meets what I have long fought for—gives reasonable protection for the future needs and development of Maine. I not only shall not oppose the bill but shall vote for it in the referendum on September 9.

"I hope it will become law, that it will stand the constitutional test and that it will bring development, prosperity, reduced rates, a considerable revenue and political harmony to the State of Maine."

2 Light and Power Rate Hearings Are Postponed

Hearings on the petition of the selectmen of Bourne for a reduction in the rates of the Southeastern Massachusetts Power & Electric Company, continued to allow the parties at interest to reach an agreement, today was again put off until next Tuesday by the Public Utilities Commission.

The time for filing briefs in the case of the towns of Bourne and Sandwich, seeking rate reductions from the Cape & Vineyard Electric Company, was today extended by the commission from April 15 to April 23. Counsel on both sides sought the continuance.

Power Trust Grab Makes a Stir on Beacon Hill

News of the Power Trust's grab of the Boston Herald and Boston Traveler controlling stock created a sensation on Beacon Hill today, particularly in view of the bitter battle being fought over the power bill designed to enable cities and towns to engage in the lighting business.

PLOT TO JAM 'L' BILL THROUGH IS BLOCKED

without further reading brought Representative Twohig to his feet in protest, declaring he would never be party to such a proposal. He was seconded by Representative Buckley, and when the smoke of battle cleared away Buckley and Representatives Wadsworth were on record as dissenters from the bill.

These favored the bill as redrafted: Senators Warren, Arlington, and Fish, Brookline, with Representatives Hollis, Newton, and Gilman, Boston. Absent members were Representatives Hearn, Boston; Sandberg, Quincy; Kimball, Malden; Mellen, Charlestown, and Holmes, Weymouth. Sandberg, Kimball and Holmes are said to favor the bill.

In its redrafted form the bill calls for extension of public control for 10 years; replacement of preferred stock with 4½ per cent bonds; reduction in dividends on common stock from 6 to 5 per cent with the provision it may be bought later at $110 a share, and creation of a metropolitan transit council which, with the Department of Public Utilities, would have the power to extend rapid transit.

Representatives Standish, Stoneham; Ames, Lynn, and Dearborn, Somerville, are understood to have favored the measure with the right to oppose it later if the transit extensions are not satisfactory to them. It is expected Mellen of Charlestown will favor it as it provides eventually for tearing down the Elevated structure, and extending the subway to Sullivan sq.

Twohig so strenuously opposed the proposition to increase the number of trustees from five to six that it was dropped. The committee adopted the plan to end the life of the present board of trustees this year.

Seaman Steals Coat to Purchase Liquor

After a chase in which a shot was fired, Frank Tomasello, a seaman, of Dover st., was arrested today by Special Officer McCarthy of Division 4 for stealing a bundle from an express truck.

Arraigned in municipal court for larceny of property valued at $100, Cunningham changed his original plea to guilty and asked he look the bundle, containing a coat, to obtain money to buy liquor. He was sentenced to one year by Judge Dowd. When his request to be sent to Charles st. jail was refused he appealed.

REBELS PUT 2 U.S. BOYS IN PRISON

El Paso, Tex., April 11 (AP)—Four young Americans who went to war with the Mexican Insurrectos today found their thrilling adventures ended.

Two of the adventurers, S. E. Gilbert, 23, Eastland, Tex., and a companion he knew only as "Butler," were abducted by the rebels and sentenced to death, but reprieved. They were allowed to return to the United States.

The other two, Fred Wood of Richmond Hill, Long Island, N. Y., and Albert Holliday of Amarillo, Tex., joined the revolutionary forces "just for the fun of it," they said. They were among a detachment of 40 rebels captured by Federals near Guadalupe, and now are held as prisoners of war at Juarez. Mexican Federal authorities have promised to release them, however.

Gilbert, returning to his home State, gave a melodramatic account of his involuntary service with the rebels. It began with a trip to Juarez with Butler, a chance acquaintance. Both were abducted, Gilbert related, after Butler had boasted that Gilbert was an experienced aviator the rebel leaders connected them with the bombing of Jimenez and sentenced them to die.

Robert Swain of El Paso, a member of Gen. J. Gonzlo Escobar's staff, interceded and saved them from a firing squad.

chairman of the board of bar examiners, was made public.

In the letter, protesting to President W. Proctor against the poll, Atty. Bailey stated Edmund A. Whitman has already resigned because of the action, and that the writer expects to sever his connection with the association as soon as his "No" vote has been counted.

In his letter Bailey wrote:

"I protest for the following reasons: 1. The matter is one which the Bar Association ought not to deal with. At a meeting of the American Bar Association, held at Cleveland in 1920, some of the leading members and ex-president of the American Bar Association at a business meeting introduced a resolution urging the different states not to ratify the 18th amendment. After the full discussion, the association by decisive vote rejected the resolution. The principal reason for their rejection, I think, was the ground that it was no part of the business of the association to express itself on the subject.

"2—A postal card vote gives the members of the association no opportunity for discussion, and I think it is not authorized by the constitution and by-laws.

GIRL WHO TOLD OF DRUG DEN IS MISSING

BELIEVED HELD TO KEEP HER SILENT

Discovery was made today by the police that Margaret Sandulo, 25, has mysteriously disappeared since she told a pitiful story in court last week of being led to drug addiction in the Chinatowns of New York and Boston.

Search for her was launched today when she failed to answer in municipal court when her name was called, and although she was formally declared in default, the authorities fear that she was absent through no fault of her own, but was being held somewhere against her will.

She had arranged for and put up $2000 bail for her appearance today and it is not believed she had any intention of fleeing the city when she was temporarily released last Thursday.

Blaming opium, she had admitted her guilt in a larceny charge of $375 worth of merchandise from downtown department stores, but was released to give probation and other court authorities time to investigate her gripping story.

She told Judge Pecoraro she became an opium addict when friends introduced her to an underworld clique in New York's Chinatown. She fought against the habit and at last broke away from her coterie and came to Boston, hoping to escape her former environment forever.

She was winning her fight when she went to a restaurant in the Hub's Chinatown one night and was led into conversation by another white girl.

With this girl she went to another place and found it not a restaurant, but an opium-smoking den on Hudson st. There, she admitted, she again fell for the attraction of the "pipe" and smoked for two days. On the third she went out and stole, under the urge of needing more money to satisfy her reawakened appetite for "dope."

Officers of the narcotics squad were instructed to seek her. Her husband, John Sandulo, who was arrested with her last week by Sergt. Robert Caverly and Special Officer Daniel Curran of headquarters, was also defaulted today when he failed to appear for trial on the larceny charge, to which he had pleaded not guilty.

King Is 'Sprats' Again to Crony of the Sea

Bognor, England, April 11 (AP)—Two seafaring cronies looked over an old ship's log-book, examined faded photographs and discussed vanished comrades in the garden of Craigweil House today.

George V of England, once a midshipman in the British navy, and the other was William King, 76, sailor, who had been His Majesty's shipmate aboard the old warship Bacchante 50 years ago.

William brought with him, in addition to the log, photographs of the Bacchante taken during a squall in the Indian ocean when King George was aboard as a midshipman, familiarly known to his shipmates by the nickname of "Sprats."

One was His Majesty King "The King was very nice and jolly," said William after their interview, "and we laughed and talked of the days when we were lads together and when I used to pull ashore in the captain's cutter."

One of William's treasured possessions henceforth will be an autographed photograph of the King in admiral's uniform, which His Majesty presented to him in saying goodbye.

MABEL FOR DRY CZARINA UNDER MITCHELL

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Atty.-Gen. Mitchell is hopeful that Congress at its special session beginning Monday will enact necessary legislation for the transfer of the prohibition enforcement unit from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice.

The transfer was proposed by President Hoover in his inaugural address as the first step in a program of better law enforcement. It is now determined legislation is necessary for its accomplishment since enforcement power was vested in the treasury by Congress.

Most details of the transfer have been worked out, with the general plan now before the President.

Enforcement would be under an assistant attorney general, probably Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who has charge of enforcement of the prohibition, internal revenue, narcotic and customs laws.

Injured Lynn Boy Found in Gutter

John Savoy, 10, of 37 Buffum st., Lynn, was found unconscious in the gutter at James and Stewart sts., that city, by Leo Mulligan of Malden today, and taken to the Lynn Hospital. The boy, suffering from bruises on the abdomen and facial cuts, revived and told the police he had no recollection of what happened. He could not remember being struck by an automobile.

Boston Bank to Build Argentine Building

Buenos Aires, Argentina, April 11 (AP)—The First National Bank of Boston has acquired two lots along the Avenue Roque Sanez Pena, on which, it is said authoritatively, a huge building will be erected, to be known as the "Casa de Norte America," or North American House.

DR. STIDGER'S ATTACK IS PROTESTED

Bangor, Me., April 11 (AP)—Protest against the criticism of Protestant theological seminaries and church schools voiced by Dr William L. Stidger of Boston Theological school before the Maine conference of the Methodist Episcopal church yesterday was heard on the floor of the conference today and resulted in the appointment of a committee "to test out the sentiment of the conference."

"Our seminaries and schools have tried to run themselves into scholastic respectability," Dr. Stidger told the pastors. "They are more concerned in making Ph. D.'s in whose breast the milk of human passion has dried up than they are in saving souls. The background of our theological seminaries has been so colored with the goal of doctorates that the goal of bringing in the kingdom of God has been lost sight of."

The Rev. J. G. Rogers, field agent for the Zion's Herald, Methodist publication, told the conference as it opened this morning, that Dr. Stidger's remarks were "misleading and possibly mischievous."

He declared the sentiment as expressed by the Boston theologian was not the correct sense of the delegates.

CARMEN STILL IN DEADLOCK

Officials of the carmen's union and the Public Trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company remained deadlocked today after two hours' discussion of wages and discipline in the company's offices, 38 Chauncy st.

According to Vice-President Fred A. Cummings of the company, union representatives refused to yield to the proposal that the carmen relinquish part of the three cents an hour wage increase granted last year.

Efforts to affect a new agreement whereby disciplinary cases would no longer be subject to arbitration met with similar resistance. The present agreement will expire May 1.

Talk on Dickens' London

The final meeting of the literature department of the Brookline Woman's Club was held this morning at Whitney Hall. Miss Florence Smith, artist and dramatic chairman of the Dickens Fellowship, talked to the members on "A Ramble in Dickens' London," illustrated with colored lantern slides.

WILL BE LYNN'S GUEST

MAYORESS OF KING'S LYNN

Marchioness Townshend of Raynham, England, mayoress of King's Lynn, has accepted the invitation of the city of Lynn, Mass., to participate in the tercentenary celebration there, June 30 to July 3, 1930. (A. P. photo.)

Liberty's Light Out Over Benighted New Yorkers

New York, April 11 (AP)—Liberty, as represented by Bartholdi's famous statue on Bedloe's Island, has temporarily ceased her symbolic enlightenment of the world.

A schooner passing the island with a dragging anchor apparently severed the electric cable stretching across the harbor bottom from the Jersey shore. The damage was discovered when the 150 residents of the island tried to turn on their lights.

Wish to 'See the World' Moved Morse Girl to Run Away

Rosamond Morse, 17-year-old Brookline girl, who was found in Miami by the Watts Detective Agency after being missing for more than three months, left home because her ambitions to go to Paris and "see something of the world" had been opposed by her family.

This was the explanation given today by Antonio de Armas of Manzanas, Cuba, a painting contractor, known in Miami as Duque de Bacardi.

De Bacardi has been acquainted with Miss Morse for two months or more, he said, and it was then he learned who she was and reported it in the hope of getting a reward.

He said Miss Morse told him this was her reason for running away, after he had revealed to her that he had discovered through a photograph in a newspaper that she was Rosamond Morse.

Under guard of a private detective, the Brookline schoolgirl started for home today.

Although she told her father by telephone that she would be glad to return, no chances are being taken, for fear she might decide to disappear once more. Dispatches from Miami say she was on the point of leaving for New York, not with the intention of returning home, when she was found out.

She has been in the Florida winter resort since January 19, two weeks after her departure from her home on Fairmount st., Brookline, it was learned today. When found she was staying at a $7 a week hotel. She had previously been in St. Augustine and other cities and was working as a waitress.

It is reported from Miami that de Bacardi, before finally revealing to a private detective the whereabouts of the girl he had identified as Rosamond Morse, demanded a large share of any reward that her grateful parents might pay. No reward was ever offered publicly for her return.

Throughout her stay in the South Miss Morse concealed her identity under the cloak of another name, Mary Joan Sprague, and said she was from St. Louis.

Detectives are checking up on a friend, Patricia Parker, with whom she chummed at Miami, in the belief that Miss Parker may also be a "missing girl."

BRIDGE MEN ASK FOR RAISE, BUT PLEA IS VAIN

City bridge-tenders and their assistants today asked a raise in pay of $100 each through their union officials, who appeared before the City Council committee on appropriations with the request.

"You're all right and I hope you get your increase, but frankly I don't see any chance for you," said Councilor Dowling.

He opposed receiving the delegation on the ground that it was useless inasmuch as the committee, which is going over the mayor's budget, has no power to make any changes, but can only recommend them. The tenders had previously asked the mayor for the increases without any result.

On urging from Councilmen Ruby and Murphy, the union officials, William C. Birrell, president; Frank F. Morse, secretary-treasurer, and William Thomas, were allowed to present their request. Fourteen drawtenders seek $2100 instead $2000, 28 assistant tenders ask $1900 in place of $1800 and 93 other assistants want a boost from $1700 to $1800.

$55,000,000 in One Nip by Jack Frost

San Francisco, April 11 (AP)—A crop damage of $55,000,000 in California from frost during the last few days was indicated today with the receipt by the State Department of Agriculture of detailed reports of losses. While the northern counties bore the brunt of the attack by freezing temperatures, no section escaped a nip.

GIGGLES AT TEX GUINAN TRIAL ROIL JUDGE

New York, April 11 (AP)—Federal Judge Thomas of Connecticut threatened to expel spectators from the courtroom today as the repartee of Texas Guinan, night club hostess, charged with maintaining a nuisance, drew continued laughter from the crowd.

Miss Guinan, heavily jewelled, resumed the witness chair for continued cross-examination while men and women fought with court attendants to gain entrance. Producing a hand mirror she smilingly adjusted her taffy-colored hair to while away the time.

CROWD CAUTIONED.

Special Attorney-General Morrison asked if her contract with the Salon Royale guaranteeing her a minimum of $1000 a week had not been drawn "out of the blue sky."

"No, he drew it up in my office," Miss Guinan replied, and the crowd, considering this a humorous "comeback," roared.

"This is a trial and not a show," Judge Thomas admonished the spectators. "If anyone laughs once more I will have the attendants clear the galleries."

Miss Guinan asked about nurses he said were frequently invited to the night club and Miss Guinan said they helped care for her mother and she wanted to give them a good time in return.

NO DRINK FOR THEM

"Were they provided with drinks as part of that good time?" the prosecutor asked.

"Certainly not," said Miss Guinan.

The crowd saw cause for more merriment in Miss Guinan's reply to a question as to whether she had not once referred to the Salon Royale as the "Saloon Royale."

"I don't think I'd say such a stupid thing." Miss Guinan said, "but I'm not sure, because I've said a lot of things in my life."

SHEEHAN COURT CASE APRIL 24

The case of Patrolman Jeremiah J. Sheehan of the Boston liquor squad, charged with drunken driving and operating so as to endanger the public, in municipal court today was continued to April 24. Sheehan pleaded not guilty.

The continuance was granted by Judge Farmerter on agreement of counsel, after Attorney Michael Shanley for Sheehan explained his client is at present on trial before a board at police headquarters.

Sergt. Frank McNabb of Back Bay station, who was in court with Capt. John M. Anderson, said the continuance was agreeable to him. Lawrence N. Donnelly, alleged to have been in the car with Sheehan, pleaded not guilty to drunkenness and his case was continued to the same date.

Mrs. Gann Winner in Dinner Honors; Loser in Club

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Although the diplomatic corps has decided to extend to Mrs. Edward E. Gann, sister of Vice-President Curtis, the same social rank given a Vice-President's wife, her status as an "associate member" of the Senate Ladies' Luncheon Club is to remain unaltered.

The seat at the head of the table ordinarily assigned by the club to the wife of the Vice-President, will continue to be occupied by Mrs. George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, wife of the president pro tem of the Senate.

SPURNED DRY AGENT'S DATE

Kitty O'Reilly, one of Texas Guinan's girls, says that James M. White, prohibition agent and chief witness against Texas Guinan, who is charged with maintaining a nuisance at her night club, tried to make a "date" with her. White denies it, but there are lots of men who wouldn't. (Associated Press photo.)

All West Australia in Hunt for Lost Fliers

Sydney, N. S. W., April 11 (AP)—Search for Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and the missing fliers of the Southern Cross was intensified today as the government of Western Australia put all its resources into the hunt.

The official search was put under the direction of Col. Mansbridge, resident magistrate at Broome, and he has gone to Derby to direct operations from there. Searching parties have been organized and all members of the Port George Mission, except two women, were said to be participating.

WILL REDRAFT BOSTON SCHOOL BOARD BILL

The legislative committee on cities in executive session today voted to appoint a sub-committee to redraft a bill for establishment in Boston of a board of commissioners of school buildings.

The sub-committee will study all phases of the controversy between the school committee and the present schoolhouse commission, and submit its recommendation within ten days.

Senator James Torrey of Beverly, Senate chairman, and Representative Richard D. Crockwell of Medford, House chairman, will serve on the sub-committee.

INVESTMENT CO. TAX CUT URGED

Tax Commissioner Long today advocated a bill to decrease the State tax on investment trusts before the House committee on ways and means.

The bill, he said, was virtually a "subsidy to keep these people in the State."

He urged a minimum provision so that the trusts would pay not less than one-twentieth of one per cent of their capital stock as tax.

Charles M. Rogerson, for the Massachusetts Trust Company Association, asked for a substitute bill taxing the corporations at the same rate as the banks.

Banned Book Test Trial Next Week

For selling a copy of "An American Tragedy," a banned book, to Police Lieut. Daniel Hines, in a test case, Donald S. Friede of New York goes on trial next Monday in Suffolk Superior Court. Friede came to Boston in April, 1927, and arranged for the police to "buy" the book for a test, but Judge Murray refused to issue a warrant. Later police went before another judge and the complaint was issued, Friede being found guilty and fined $100, which he appealed.

The case came up in superior court a few weeks later, but Friede was in Europe and was defaulted.

FIN. COM. CONDEMNS TOLL TUNNEL PLAN

YEARLY DEFICIT OF MILLION PREDICTED

The Boston Finance Commission today severely condemned the East Boston toll tunnel bill in a circular letter received by individual members of the Senate.

"To cast the enormous burden of $16,000,000 solely upon Boston would constitute an act of agression upon the taxpayers of Boston never before committed in the history of Boston," the communication, signed by Chairman John C. L. Dowling, charged.

Also the public statement by a "prominent candidate for mayor" that operating the tunnel under a 25-cent toll will cause a big deficit is concurred in by the commission. It estimates the deficit will be $1,000,000 a year, which will be assessed on the taxpayers in general.

The commission also predicts, from its 20 years' experience in city work, that the ultimate cost of the project will be nearer $25,000,000 instead of the $16,000,000 mentioned in the bill. This latter sum, it is pointed out, is only the minimum.

It is protested that the expenditure has no line-up to a definite plan showing the route or the location of the termini of the tubes, and that the understanding will undoubtedly prevent the city from proceeding with other necessary improvements for years to come.

That there is no doubt that East Boston needs better traffic communication with the city proper is admitted by the commission. But the commission takes the stand that other cities and towns to the north are to be directly benefited and should bear part of the cost. Governor Allen, the commission stated, recognized these benefits in his inaugural address.

Also, the commission says, the bill contains no provision for the solution of the East Boston ferry traffic, which to date amounts to $14,007,794.

"Past history in Boston shows that tunnel tolls are not long in effect," the letter continued. "The tolls for the present East Boston railway tunnel, although their selection was made a part of the contract between the city and the bondholders, were abolished as soon as the cost taken over by the city."

SIX REINDICTED FOR FACTORY HOLDUP

A new indictment was returned today by the Suffolk grand jury against Joseph McGlinchey, Daniel Watts, Abraham Cohen, William Troy, Philip J. Cronin and Nicholas F. Smith for robbery of $5800 from Abraham Madow of the Madow shoe factory on June 4, 1928. The case will go to trial on Monday.

Attorney James H. Brennan attacked the validity of a former indictment against the defendants on the ground that Cronin, now serving a state term in the state prison, was permitted to go into the grand jury room and testify, accompanied by a court officer.

Judge Williams at that time took no action, but when the pending indictment was found he authorized Cronin to go before the grand jury in the custody of Officer Edward Loring of the superior court.

Brennan renewed his former motion to have the indictment quashed, but Judge Williams denied a plea in abatement made on behalf of McGlinchey and Cohen, and also the motion to quash the indictment.

Woman Beats Cop's Speed Judgment

Miss Julia C. Bryant of Craigie circle, Cambridge, a Hingham school teacher, in Quincy Court today was acquitted of a charge of speeding when she convinced Judge Kenneth Nash that the police officer who arrested her was unable to determine accurately the speed at which she was driving her motor car.

Catholics in U. S. Give $1,262,168 to Mission Fund

Vatican City, April 11 (AP)—Announcement was made today that Catholics in the United States contributed $1,262,168 to the work of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith in the mission field during 1928. It was an increase of $138,580 over 1927.

A semi-official note pointed out that the American contribution was virtually half of the contribution of the entire Catholic world to this end.

3 COLLAPSE IN $40,000 FIRE IN EVERETT

Fire apparatus from Chelsea and Malden joined the Everett department early today in a five-hour battle against flames which swept through the block of stores at 303-307 Main st., menacing other buildings in the heart of the West Everett business district.

Three firemen were overcome and a score of others temporarily affected by the dense smoke and gas fumes in the basement of the block.

The entire structure, a one-story wooden affair, was devastated by the flames, the cause of which has not been determined.

Fire Chief Ham of Everett estimated the damage as $15,000 to the building and $25,000 to the contents.

The fire was discovered by Patrolman Felix Dumas, who saw smoke eddying from the basement of a grocery store, owned by Salvatore Ile Angelo, in the center of the block.

The firemen overcome were Lieut. Edward Evans and Firemen Richard Bailey and William Duncan of the Everett force. They were prostrated in the building and were carried to safety by other firemen. All were given first aid and it was announced that none were in a serious condition.

Six families in three houses on Dyer ave., adjacent to the burning block, were forced from their homes into the streets by the smoke that filled the buildings. Eight other families in an apartment house at 297 Main st. gathered their belongings together and prepared to flee should the flames spread.

Handbag Gone After Boys Visit Hospital

After three boys, 8, 10 and 12 years old, left Winthrop Community Hospital today, Miss Regina L. Wry, secretary, discovered her handbag containing $15 was missing. Winthrop and Revere police are searching for the boys. They went to the hospital after one of their number fell from a truck and bruised his knee, which was bandaged by one of the nurses.

RIVAL TEXTILE UNIONS TO AID

New York, April 11 (AP)—Two rival textile unions today were organizing support for the striking textile workers in the south.

While the National Textile Workers' Union, a Communist organization now in control of the strike in North and South Carolina, discussed at a meeting the raising of relief funds, the executive council of the United Textile Workers of America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, arranged to enter the strike field.

The A. F. of L. organization adopted plans for an extensive unionization campaign.

Offers Her Baby Girl to Pay for Court Fine

Geneva, Ill., April 11 (AP)—Mrs. Sophia Maria who had stolen $37 to provide for her seven children, and who had been caught, offered her youngest—a little brown-eyed girl—in payment of her fine.

"I cannot pay," she told Justice W. A. Keiser. "If I had money, I would not have stolen."

She held the baby toward the justice. There was a catch in her voice, and tears on her cheek as she said:

"She's worth more than you can ever fine me—but you may have her."

Justice Keiser spoke sternly:

"Go home—and take your baby with you."

ALIEN RULING INCLUDES ALL CANADIANS

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The recent ruling of the Supreme Court, withholding border crossing privileges from foreign-born citizens of Canada, is construed by immigration service officials also to effect native-born Canadians.

"The chief effect of that will be to require a Canadian to pay the $8 head tax as an immigrant, and the $10 consular 'a fee,'" Robe Carl White, first assistant secretary of labor, said today. "The difficulties have been occasioned by the practice of Canadian residents along the border in obtaining employment in the United States and going to and from their foreign homes to work and back daily. The native Canadian, if he intends to continue such employment in the United States, will have to pay the fees and undergo medical examination, but once that is done he will have a practically unlimited right to border crossing."

Theaters

Dorothy Gish Laughs Sin Away at the Plymouth

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

ACCORDING to the best-devised rules of the theater, "Young Love," now at the Plymouth, should wax hearty and press persistently upon the boys in the box office. Whether it turns out that way or just simmers down to moderate daily funetioning, depends entirely upon how keenly the playgoer takes to a farcical exposition of illicit love. For that is all there is to stir your interest in the comedy. To be sure, Dorothy Gish, of former fame in cinema, gives her talents to a speaking part and not only makes the best of a naughty intrigue, but handles herself like a veteran. Miss Gish handsomely exceeded our expectations.

WHAT almost any straight-minded family man would frown upon as being a wicked connivance with sin, Miss Gish and her three companions in "Young Love" transform into rollicking farce. The play is amusing but pitifully unreal. When a boy and a girl who are devotedly attached to each other decide to test their affection by a prearranged lurch to leeward with another couple, matters from the playgoer viewpoint are just bound to pick up. The city of Providence, represented by a virtuous police chieftain, declared that public morals never could stand the sight of so much aggravated sin. So the play was banished. Professor Johnson of Mayor Nichols' office, pinch-hitting for John M. Casey, was much broader in mind. He ordered the removal of a few damns, egads and gosh dings, but generously permitted marital iniquity to run its course.

Nicholas Young

The surprising feature of "Young Love" is the artistic conduct of Miss Gish. The young woman can act. She possesses a rare sense of comedy values and has stage manners of captivating quality, although her morals in the play, it must be confessed, are slightly oriental. But things might have been worse; certainly they might have been less humorous. Here, at least, moral turpitude attempts justification on new grounds—the hearty laugh.

Notwithstanding its many perils, Miss Gish emerges from the fray with flying colors. Hardly less important, and fully as amusing, is Tom Douglas. He's a clever lad—a bubbling, earnest youngster of real promise to the theater. His enthusiasm is refreshing; it is genuine, not forced. Two other players, Frank Conroy and Catherine Willard, complete the small and compact roster of those who guide the performance. In these days of mounting costs, the restricted personnel appears to be coming into favor.

"Young Love" is highly seasoned comedy for the sophisticated adult.

BALL PLAYERS 10C. A DOZEN

Syracuse, N. Y., April 11 (INS)—The ball players of the bankrupt Syracuse Club of the New York-Pennsylvania League are worth about a dime a dozen, in the opinion of the lone bidder at the baseball auction here yesterday.

He offered $250 for the whole team, the franchise and the office and field equipment. The referee in bankruptcy refused the offer.

Columbus Ship Replica in Spain

Huelva, Spain, April 11 (AP)—A ship constructed to be as nearly similar to the bark "Santa Maria" which carried Christopher Columbus to America will be launched here Sunday. The craft has been constructed by ship carpenters from Palos, the little harbor from which Columbus sailed in 1492. It is to be one of the main tractions at the international exposition at Seville.

Headless Body in River Only That of Baby Doll

Gnadenhutten, O., April 11 (AP)—A report that a headless body of a four-year-old boy was found in the Tuscarawas river here today was proven false when upon investigation Coroner J. F. Lewis and Sheriff Harry C. Smith found it to be only a baby doll. Officials at first believed it might be the body of Melvin Horst, four, missing from his home in Orrville since December.

Dress Well and Succeed Our Payment Plan Will Help

A style for the Young Man just breaking into the business world.

A style for the conservative but well dressed experienced business man.

All at One Low Price

$29.50

All the pictures can do is to show the styles but seeing the suit on yourself—feeling the rich mixtures, cassimeres and worsteds in soft grays, brown and tans, in two or three-button styles—will hasten your decision. Many feature the Tattersall Vest. The new three-button semi-conservative style in shadow stripes, plaids and herringbone weaves are tremendously smart.

Topcoats With a Spring Air

Don't envy the well-dressed man, simply follow his methods. He undoubtedly first found out the three smart styles were the Raglan, Box model and Military types and then selected the one that looked best on him. The smart fabrics are Twist, fleeces and overplaids in light or dark effects in tan, smoke grays and browns.

NOAH'S ARK

See and Hear

DOLORES COSTELLO in "NOAH'S ARK" with GEORGE O'BRIEN

New York's famous Broadway has witnessed the supreme sensation of its existence. Warner Bros. "NOAH'S ARK" furnished the sensation. Now "NOAH'S ARK" brings to Boston the same thrilling and amazing entertainment.

Words cannot portray the world-sweep of this tremendous drama that comes to you with such startling life-likeness through the marvelous Voice of Vitaphone.

The colossal recreation of the Deluge, crash of falling temples, tumult of war, human passions in eternal conflict—and through it all—like a silver thread—the great Love that was triumphant amid universal chaos!

More than five thousand people make up the stupendous cast of "NOAH'S ARK". You see spectacle after spectacle that cost fortunes to produce. Thrill after thrill—climax after climax—that outreach human imagination.

"NOAH'S ARK" is a Warner Bros. Vitaphone Picture—starring DOLORES COSTELLO, with George O'Brien. It is the epic of the Screen. Entertainment—astounding and unforgettable. Coming to Boston next week.

MRS. JACKSON FLEMING SPEAKS IN AID OF FARM AND GARDEN SHOP

Handsome Ballroom at 46 Beacon St. to Be Filled to the Overflowing

SO DELIGHTFUL A SPEAKER as Mrs. Jackson Fleming always commands a distinctive, interested and interesting audience. And when she talked with a thought to specially benefit the Farm and Garden Shop there was a double measure of interest. In the ballroom at 46 Beacon st. this afternoon the brilliant gleams that ray down from the handsome cut crystal chandeliers were able to search out no single vacant place. Mrs. Fleming alone is an attraction to fill that handsomely paneled ballroom. The Farm and Garden motif added assured her a full to overflowing house.

MRS. JAMES D. COLT, MRS. ALEXANDER HENDERSON, Mrs. Clement S. Houghton, Mrs. Gelston T. King, Mrs. Harold Murdock and Mrs. Walter G. Resor were in charge of the lecture. The patronesses were: Mrs. Walter C. Bayles, Mrs. Samuel Carr, Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot, Mrs. George U. Crocker, Mrs. Charles E. Cotting, Mrs. Philip Dexter, Mrs. George Lyman, Mrs. Frederick S. Mead, Mrs. Robert C. Morse, Mrs. Edward C. Moore, Mrs. William L. McKee, Mrs. Edward R. Nash, Mrs. John G. Palfrey, Mrs. John P. Ramsey, Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson, Mrs. Henry B. Stowell, Miss Alice P. Tapley, Mrs. George W. Valliant, Mrs. Guy Waring, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Moses Williams and Miss Louvan W. Hyde.

SUMMER FOR THE FRANCIS CUMMINGSES has two particular advantages—there are hours afloat when they skim the waves about the North Shore in their small boat. And there are other hours devoted to the fascinating task of establishing themselves in a new summer domicile. Mr. and Mrs. Cummings are setting up their warm weather lares et penates in a house on the Paine estate at the North Shore. Other summers they have been living on the Marblehead shore—right in the very heart of the community that sails the seas the livelong day.

MISS MARGARET CUMMINGS, debutante in the Charles K. Cummings family for the present season of 1928-29, is having a marvelous treat as climax to coming out ball and a fling at the debutante frivolings. A while ago she sailed abroad, with some young girl friends and a chaperone, and is doing a glorious tour from one foreign marvel to another, seeing the sights and the beauties that flourish for young eyes in the old world.

PICTURE GALLERIES. Swiss villages, the musical feasts that Germany has to offer the traveler from overseas, and the entry to aristocratic French homes in the faubourgs; a dash of brilliant Riviera life and the seclusion of study hours are mingled for her to perfection. And the program continues indefinitely, probably all through the summer. Miss Margaret Cummings followed Mrs. John Malcolm Forbes (Ethel Cummings) and Miss Evelyn Cummings along the debutante path and achieved her entry most auspiciously, via an enormous ball at the Somerset.

MRS. WYMAN WHITTEMORE
With Madame Magda Lavanchey, society matron appears in concert April 16. The South End Music School is to benefit. (Bachrach photo.)

GREENVILLE, N. C., IS THE habitat of Mr. and Mrs. Z. Bennett Phelps, to whom the Register of the Elect denotes a "Dilatory Domicile" residence. Mrs. Phelps was the former Miss Isabel Thorndike, eldest of the Harry Hill Thorndike daughters, and became a bride last autumn in the full panoply of wedding splendors, arranged at Bar Harbor, where the Thorndikes were spending the summer season. Mr. Phelps will be connected with professional work in the North Carolina city for a year or more, and during that time the home will be maintained there.

BROWN HALL AT THE CONSERVATORY will be filled with an audience smart and appreciative April 16, when Mrs. Wyman Whittemore and Madame Magda Lavanchey appear there as a concert duo of more than usual importance. South End Music School, to benefit, has the solid backing of a very influentially placed social set—and were the evening less promising artistically there would always be faithful souls of the settlement backers to bring financial success.

GRAND DUCHESS TO WED BORIS

Sofia, Bulgaria, April 11 (AP)—Youthful King Boris, who seems bent on marrying, may have to take a grand duchess for a bride, instead of a princess.

Religious obstacles today seemed destined to prevent him wedding Princess Giovanna of Italy and talk arose of a possible affiance with the Grand Duchess Kira Vladimirovitch, 19-year-old daughter of Grand Duke Cyril, recognized by many Russian royalists as head of the Romanoff family.

Information here was that both the Vatican and the Bulgarian Orthodox Church declined to yield to make the alliance with Princess Giovanna possible.

Fire Insurance
The Bulwark of Trade

THE volume of trade in the United States is estimated at more than 80 billion dollars annually. Probably 90 per cent of this is transacted on credit.

The underlying safeguard of this credit is Stock Fire Insurance, with more than $150,000,000,000 constantly at risk in the protection of burnable property in this country.

This background of $150,000,000,000 of protection against disaster makes commerce on its present gigantic scale possible.

Few indeed are the activities of the home or of business that are not benefited directly or indirectly by the stabilizing effect of Stock Fire Insurance and the security that it affords.

Stock Fire Insurance is the silent partner in every enterprise—the Bulwark of Trade. It has rendered its service at a cost which on the average has constantly declined for more than twenty years.

Hoover Quick Thinker, Says Miss Pattee

PRESIDENT HOOVER thinks with lightning rapidity. He dictates with a wonderful flow of language so rapidly that it takes an agile stenographer to get all he says.

This is one of the vivid recollections of Miss Eunice H. Pattee, who occasionally took his dictation at the Paris office of the American Relief Administration. Miss Pattee had gone abroad to serve as surgical secretary to the Massachusetts General Hospital, Base 6, during the World War and remained to take the duties of secretary for two years to Dr. E. Dana Durand, President Hoover's executive officer.

There is something about President Hoover's personality that inspires intense loyalty in everyone who comes in contact with him," Miss Pattee says. "His forty numbering hundreds, loved to call him 'Chief' and when our duties were finished he personally signed notes of appreciation to each, written on beautiful parchment paper."

Miss Eunice H. Pattee

When the Massachusetts Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War ballot for their next president at their 39th annual convention next week they will choose Miss Pattee, the only candidate for this office. She is now senior vice-president of the organization, which will meet at the Hotel Statler on April 16 and 17. Miss Pattee belongs to Cambridge Post 27.

About 400 voting delegates will attend from all over the state and the national president, Miss Hazel Riley of Chicago, will be an honor guest. Mrs. Florence E. Clogston, Massachusetts department president, will preside at all sessions.

One of the features of the convention will be a report on the restoration of the Constitution by Comdr. Bruce Ware, who is in charge of this work at the Charlestown Navy Yard. He will act as the representative of Rear Admiral Andrews.

Ware is the man who fired the first American shot in the World War while in charge of the armed guard of the S. S. Mongolia, which sank a German submarine on April 19, 1917.

Governor Allen, Mayor Nichols, Judge Reese of Broken Bow, Nebraska, Miss Riley of Chicago, the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army and heads of allied patriotic organizations will be honor guests at the dinner to be given in the Georgian room on next Tuesday evening. Miss Pattee is chairman in charge of a musical program for this occasion.

The department president, Mrs. Clogston, will entertain the national president, Miss Riley, and the national treasurer, Mrs. Mattie R. Tucker of Somerville at luncheon on Tuesday and on Wednesday all officers will be luncheon guests of the Past Tent Presidents Association of Massachusetts.

A memorial service will be held Wednesday morning

TEACHERS COLLEGE DANCE

The prospect of one of its most successful dansants on tomorrow evening is keeping Teachers College in happy anticipation today. Miss Anna R. Quinn of Brighton is in charge of arrangements, assisted by Katherine Glynn, of Roxbury, who is chairman of printing, Helen Sweeney of Charlestown, orchestra, Ruth McMahon, West Roxbury, invitations, and Helen Dyman, Cambridge, publicity.

Other committee members are Emma Richter, Helen Perry, Mary O'Connor, Eleanor Duggan, Alice McTiernan, Mary Crofwell, Margaret McDonald, Ruth Condon, Helen Murphy, and Mary Mullen.

Assisting in sending invitations are Katherine Gleason, Lenore Frances Nelson, Elizabeth Wright, Mary Kean, Emily Fox, Rose Madden, Helen Davis and Anna McCarthy are on the publicity committee.

STATECRAFT INSTITUTE

Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, president of the Women's Republican Club, today received a letter from President Hoover congratulating her club on creating a "Statecraft Institute" to be held April 16, 17, 18.

"As women come fully into their share of government, such problems as education, public health, and international peace will receive fresh impulse in the nation's councils," the President's letter said in part.

Several nationally known speakers will conduct sessions at this institute.

TORNADO DEAD TOLL NEAR 50

Little Rock, Ark., April 11 (AP)—Forty-six persons were known to be dead, several missing and believed dead and almost 100 were injured in a tornado which swept through north central Arkansas.

Twenty-one were dead at Swifton, 20 miles north of Newport, and five at Guion. The latter town was reported blown completely away. All the victims were white. Six negroes were reported killed near Parkin and four negroes at Prinecdale.

At the village of Lorado, near Jonesboro, six persons were killed. The Baptist and Methodist churches and the school were leveled.

NAVY ESCORT FOR HERRICK

Washington, April 11—Two United States cruisers will steam out of Newport, R. I., bay today to meet the French cruiser Tourville, bringing to this country the body of the late Ambassador Herrick, and escort it into New York harbor.

Twelve picked French sailors have been delegated by the French government as an honor guard to escort the body, and will remain with it her until the final funeral services have been held.

Held in Truck Death

Clayton Martel of Rochester, N. H., operator of a truck that killed Constance and Alphonse Moretti on Pine st., Swampscott, March 14, was arraigned in Lynn District Court before Judge Elisha Stevens and held under $4000 for the grand jury on the charge of manslaughter on two counts.

Bayer-Tablets of Aspirin Genuine

To Identify Genuine Aspirin

THE increasing use of Bayer Aspirin every year is proof that it has no ill effects. It is the accepted antidote for pain. It always helps; it never harms. Quick relief when you've a headache, or cold; or are suffering from neuralgia or neuritis. Rheumatic pains yield, too, if you'll only give these tablets a chance. But you want genuine Aspirin, so look for the Bayer Cross on every tablet. The box always bears the name Bayer and the word "genuine" printed in red. Proven directions inside.

Aspirin is the trade mark Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

There are no bargains in health

To safeguard precious health and preserve your teeth, avail yourself of the best skill and knowledge of dental science. It is economy. It is the only reasonably sure means of preventing disease that attacks neglected gums, thus ravaging the system, robbing youth, and often causing loss of teeth. This disease is the more serious for only dental care can stem its advance once it is contracted.

See your dentist at least every six months.

Brush your teeth regularly. But don't forget that teeth are only as healthy as the gums. So brush gums vigorously, morning and night, with the dentifrice made for the purpose, Forhan's for the Gums. It helps to keep them firm and sound.

After you have used Forhan's for a few days you'll notice a vast improvement in the way your gums look and feel—firmer, sounder—thus strong enough to resist disease. Also you'll find that Forhan's cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay.

There are no bargains in health. Get a tube of Forhan's from your druggist and start using it today.

Forhan's for the gums

★ 4 persons out of 5 after forty and many younger are bargain-hunters. They sacrifice health to the extravagant price of neglect.

Gasoline Firmer Due to Export Trade

As a result of the large export orders placed for North Texas gasoline late in March, available supply of material in Group 3 district has been reduced and Oklahoma and Kansas markets have firmed from ¼ to ½ of a cent a gallon. Kerosene has remained strong around 6¾ cents.

First heavy buying for spring has come into the casinghead gasoline market, with prices strengthening and a market of 7¼ to 7½ cents a gallon for all grades is looked for during April. Sinclair, Hesscon Oil and Cities Service have purchased considerable material for April delivery.

Boston & Maine in New Financing

Boston & Maine railroad has filed applications with Interstate Commerce Commission asking for authority to issue $2,400,000 of general mortgage coupon bonds, series HH, due March 1, 1932. The bond issue is ancillary to road's plan for paying entire accrued dividends in Boston & Maine's preferred stock.

Who lugs in the Firewood Now?

Back in the hills a white farmhouse. Out in the shed, yellow birch and maple, piled sawed-ends out, in orderly array. In the big kitchen, alongside the stove, a battered wood-box yawns..

Yawns for a boy with cheeks like apples. Cool mornings he wears a tippet. And his mittens are red.

You know that boy. For all your shiny desk and graying temples, that boy was you.

Back in the hills the old roof-tree still shelters your kinsfolk. There's a radio now—and a telephone. But beside the stove stands the same old wood-box, sturdy for all its years.

And there's a boy. Maybe he's your namesake. Just as your thoughts go back to his hills, so his go out to your world.

Perhaps you went back Thanksgiving. Or Christmas. But why wait another year? It's a short, quick trip —by telephone.

CIVIC LEADERS RAP EVILS OF PROHIBITION

The Hearst $25,000 Temperance Prize Contest, which is to end Tuesday, April 30, at midnight, one of the most remarkable contests ever conducted by American newspapers, continues to draw forth the views of all America and the entire civilized world on the subject of prohibition.

Veteran editors who thought they knew considerable about prohibition before the contest began, have to confess that they have received a liberal education in the thousands of complexities and infinite ramifications of the intricate subject.

Today are subjoined some further opinions of public officials in the Albany (N.Y.) Capitol district, supplementing those previously published in the Hearst newspapers:

CORNELIUS F. BURNS, Mayor of Troy, N. Y.—I am opposed to prohibition as it now exists, yet I am heartily in favor of temperance. Under the present scheme of things, prohibition is creating a class of newly rich who are tearing down law and order. The law is placing in the hands of the lawless ample financial resources a weapon which enables them to enlarge the scope of their criminal actions.

Prohibition is a blow aimed at the young and at the homes of the nation. As it now exists it breeds contempt for law. The answer to the perils of prohibition is government control. I firmly believe that until this is done the evils of prohibition will continue to exist.

JOHN G. SALT, City Clerk of Rensselaer, N. Y.—Take a trip to our northern border this coming Fourth of July and count the number of cars bearing yellow license plates that speed over the border to celebrate America's independence. Such a trip will give Americans some idea of what prohibition has done for this country.

Millions of dollars are being spent out of the country each year, and to my mind that shows what the majority of Americans want. That they will get it sooner or later seems a certainty. Everyone knows what prohibition has done to the morality of the youth of the land, but it is not the youth alone that suffers from the evil effects of such a ridiculous law.

To repeal the Volstead Act or modify the Eighteenth Amendment would be a godsend to this country. The majority of Americans would like the return of light wines and beer. There was never as much drinking of hard liquors as since the enactment of the prohibition laws. Mr. Hoover is to be complimented for his efforts in seeking a temperance substitute for prohibition, and I feel certain that he will be successful.

LAUNCH DRIVE FOR $2,000,000 CHARITY FUND

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Tremendous impetus was given today to a $2,000,000 nationwide drive for a charity fund fostered by a Jewish organization, but invited Jewish leaders and others. One of the foremost in the movement is Aaron Fox of the films, aided by Thomas W. Feiban and Otis Emerson Dunham, two of Boston's most prominent business men.

Aaron Fox

In direct charge in Boston is Amos Hall of the Independent Order of the British, whose executive committees and officers made the arrangements for the mammoth concerts in the Boston Garden, Sunday afternoon and evening, by Cantor Josef Rosenblatt, internationally known singer, and his company the proceeds from which will go into the Boston fund quota.

The last plans were made and announced at a midnight dinner at the Ritz-Carlton, held following the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Fox from New York city. The national campaign is to be known as the "Wide Scope" fund drive, and the money raised will be devoted to educational and charitable work generally, throughout this country.

Among those who spoke were T. W. Feiban, Benj. J. Shoninan, attorney and national director of the I. O. B. B.; Lester Allen, the actor, who was master of ceremonies; President Harry Greenblatt of Amos Lodge; Henry G. Segal of the Royal Film Exchange; Freeman Bernstein, in charge of field activity in putting the fund over, the top; Manager Frank Hookanlo of the Washington St. Olympia and Fenway Theaters; Victor Morris of the Orpheum Theater, and others.

Free Scrubwoman in Rothstein Mystery

New York, April 11 (AP)—After 134 days as an involuntary guest of the city, Bridget Farry, the last witness held in the Rothstein slaying, was free under $1500 bail today to resume her interrupted occupation of scrubwoman.

Bridget had been at work in the third floor corridor of the Park Central Hotel on Nov. 4, a week before Arnold Rothstein, notorious gambler, was fatally shot, and since then had been held in $5000 as a material witness.

Unable to raise bail, she had been in jail, a hospital and finally a Catholic institution, while others arrested in the case raised higher bail and were freed.

"A long time, me boy," she said as she gained her freedom. "A long time for an old woman like me. Cops on me trail all the time. Cops on me neck. And women cops at that!"

The district attorney informed her she was entitled to $3 a day as witness fees for the time of her detention, but turning to Samuel J. Resnick, her attorney, she commanded, "Don't take a penny from the state."

Resnick warned her she would need the money, but she said, "Never mind that kind of money."

He said she would not be able to do as other witnesses in the case, leave for Miami or Havana to recuperate from a few days in jail.

"Bridget just wants to get a job," he said. "You don't know anybody who wants a fine, able-bodied scrubwoman, do you?"

Boy, 5, Eats Poison Pills; Will Recover

Eating some pills which he found in a closet, five-year-old Ross Festa, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Festa of Division st., Chelsea, was rendered unconscious today. He was found by his mother and was taken to Chelsea Memorial Hospital, where it was said he was seriously ill, but would recover.

Worcester, April 11 (AP)—The first case to test validity of a legislative act of 1925 which holds an insurance company liable for a judgment against a driver of an automobile although he is not the owner of the machine, was entered in the Superior Court here today and involves four residents of Leominster.

STOCK BROKER SUSPENDED

New York, April 11 (AP)—Hubert M. Schott of Schott & Galliver, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, was suspended from the exchange today for a period of one year.

The suspension was under the regulation in the constitution which states "no employe (of a member) shall be paid other than a fixed salary not varying with the business unless the prior written approval therefore shall have been given by the committee on quotations and commissions."

Other partners in Mr. Schott's firm are George A. Galliver, John W. Cooper and Geveridge J. Rockefeller. Mr. Schott is the only member of the firm holding an exchange membership.

Society Aviatrix Killed in Crash

Long Beach, Cal., April 11 (INS)—Aviation, the hobby of Claude McWhinney, wealthy Long Beach lawyer, and his wife, today cost Mrs. McWhinney her life when one of two planes which they owned crashed at the municipal airport. Mrs. McWhinney was killed when the plane, piloted by her husband, fell 50 feet and crashed into a fence. McWhinney suffered minor injuries.

WARM WEATHER IS FORECAST

Rising temperatures, accompanied by overcast skies, were predicted today for Greater Boston following the snow storm of yesterday.

A high pressure area has moved out of the northwest and is today centered in the lower St. Lawrence Valley. This area is expected to continue outward, bringing warmer weather.

At the same time a low pressure area in the west has brought snow to South Dakota, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, while rain is falling in Iowa, the lower Mississippi Valley, Tennessee and the Ohio Valley.

Too Much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

ANOTHER SIX-DAY STORY

by CHARLES G. BOOTH

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

Gail Hollister, sent to Colonel Conniston, a collector and owner of the famous Conniston emeralds, to tabulate his treasures, sees Kerry O'Neil, a handkerchief over his face holding up two men in a car. Later she meets Conniston, sees the jewels, and goes to bed. The men Kerry tried to hold up are Victor Gill and his father, diamond merchants, who sought to buy the emeralds for $300,000. Kerry had an interest in the gems and thinks the Gills have them. He is mistaken. Gail finds Conniston dead. Kerry appears. She knows he will be suspected. She persuades him to flee.

Detectives question Gail. Kerry hides on the beach. He confesses his love for Gail. They both think Conniston was slain by Stark, a nephew, whom both the housekeeper and Gail had seen in the moonlight near the house. Kerry in secret insists on coming to the house to investigate.

Further evidence seems to show that Dimity, the colonel's confidential servant, was the slayer.

CHAPTER 4

"DIMITY!"

Gail found herself whispering the little man's name as she re-entering her room she saw a small package of paper on the floor of the balcony. She opened it and a small key and a triangle of blotting paper fell out. A bit of paper, neatly folded, was also enclosed. She opened it with trembling fingers and read:

"Don't worry. I'll look after myself. Love to you—and Bartlett. "K."

Gail pressed the note to her lips and laughed and wept with joy.

She went downstairs. Bartlett was just leaving the house, accompanied by Decker. To the latter Gail gravely presented the key. The scrap of blotter she handed to Bartlett. He studied it for a moment, in silence, then he looked at Gail sharply.

"Where did you get this?"

Gail told him, saying nothing of the note.

He thrust the scrap of blotter into a vest pocket, and left the door.

Gail thought of the secret passage by which Kerry had escaped. She would explore it.

Taking an electric torch she passed into the smaller cellar The trap was open.

Gail cautiously let herself down the ladder. She had gone but a short distance when she found herself in a large vaulted chamber. She quickly reached the sloping bottom. The chamber ended in a narrow passage, the straight gray walls of which rose some 40 feet above her. A minute later she passed out onto the beach.

She was in a small cove rather completely cut off from the beach on each side of it by protecting arms of rock The cliff was over a hundred feet in height and dangerously concave near the top.

Gail approached the pile curiously. She had come within a yard of it when a voice hailed her.

"Well, what do you make of it?"

Gail whirled on her heel.

Perrin, the reporter, stood behind her.

"I don't know," she said, eyeing him coolly. "Where did you come from?"

He nodded towards the spur of rock on the south side of the cave. "I was going back over there. I came through the cave. Queer place, isn't it?"

"I suppose," she said, "you believe that Kerry O'Neil killed Dimity?"

"Bartlett thinks so."

"How do you account for that fragment of Dimity's coat sleeve which Decker found on the vault door?"

Perrin shook his head. "I can't—unless he and O'Neil were in it together. and O'Neil killed Dimity because he didn't trust him."

"But if Kerry killed Dimity he must have done so before he came up to the house with me," Gail went on. "He couldn't have done it afterwards—Bartlett and Stark and Peters were too close behind him."

"I know."

"Then he must have killed Dimity while I was with him," Gail said deliberately. She paused; her eyes, wide and deep, questioned Perrin gravely. "That would make me an accessory to the crime, wouldn't it?"

"I thought I'd make one or two inquiries down at the village" said Perrin. "Now Stark has a gray sport roadster—one of those high powered Druids—and I figured that if he was down here the night Colonel Conniston was killed he came in his Druid.

"Well, a man named Bill Dale saw a Druid sport roadster roar through the village the other night—or morning—

"Dale told me a man named Burke owns a car which he parks on the street near the hotel day and night. Burke was playing poker in a pool room all the night Conniston was killed. He didn't leave the table between 9 p. m. and 4 a. m. But Dale went out for a drink about 1 a. m. and he saw Burke's car rattle off down the street in this direction. Remember, this happened two hours before he saw the Druid

"The next morning Burke found his speedometer registering five miles more than it had the night before. It is just five miles from here to the village and back."

"I should say," McEwan commented. "You have done pretty well, young man."

Gail could restrain herself no longer. "Now are you convinced that Mrs. Wessels and I saw Stark in the moonlight?" she cried triumphantly

"I am!" Perrin burst forth.

Dr. McEwan produced a sheet of carbon paper of the letterhead size. Gail saw that it had been used but once and upon a typewriter.

"I found this in the drawer at Colonel Conniston's library table along with other writing materials. Bartlett seems to have missed it.

"The letter which appears on this carbon was written to Norman Stark on August 20—Conniston died around midnight of the 23rd, or very early in the morning of the 24th."

McEwan took a sheet of notepaper from the envelope and handed it to Gail. Perrin glanced over her shoulder. They read:

"Nephew: I have definitely made up my mind in this matter. If you wish to come down on the 23d or the 24th and go into it again, as you suggest, you may do so. But I warn you that nothing you may say will have the slightest effect upon the decision I have come to.

"PHILIP CONNISTON."

Perrin whistled. "Short and

THE CURIOUS QUIZZER

Every day he asks a question and pictures those questioned.

THE QUESTION

Do you think the city should establish at least one point where a medical prescription may be filled 24 hours of the day and night?

MARGARET FLORENCE, 81 Buckingham rd., Quincy, at home —Often, when the needs of a prescription presented by an attending physician are very urgent, it does not seem right that one can not find a proper place to obtain the required medicines when it may mean the saving of a life I know that there is no trouble in New York in getting anything one wants in a drug store, because I have purchased medicines there in the early morning hours.

* * * *

JOHN A. SEAVERNS, 99 Broad st., Boston, chemist—I can see no necessity for the keeping open of drug stores during the 24 hours of the day. What need is there of such a place to be conducted by the city? The medical man when called on a case needing the saving of a life, always has such medicines required in the bag he carries Furthermore, there are plenty of places where, in desperate cases of illness, the patient can be taken to a hospital in 15 minutes by calling a hospital ambulance.

WILLIAM R. ROLFS, 113 Warren st., Rox., salesman—Really, the establishment of several all-night drug stores, conducted by the city, should be a great benefit to the people of Boston. The city has a large population, urgent cases of sickness demand immediate attention. The doctor can not be expected to carry around all kinds of medicines in his kit, and when he does not have a supply of the needed medicine, some municipal place should exist in the neighborhood where the doctor's prescription could be filled at any time, day or night.

ALICE CARSON, 146 Hillside st., Roxbury, waitress—The city most certainly should go into the drug store business, so that medicine can be purchased all through the 24 hours. Because of an aching tooth, I know what I am talking about Only two weeks ago I suffered something beyond belief from pain of my teeth. I tried remedies of both hot and cold water to alleviate the tortures I suffered until after midnight, and then went from my home to several drug stores in a three-mile walk, hoping to buy something to kill the pain from that tooth. Not one drug store in all that walk did I find open.

DRINK PROBLEM UP TO STUDENTS

Somerville in Sunday Ball Tangle

ALDERMEN EXPECTED TO ACT

Somerville aldermen are expected to take action at their bi-monthly meeting tonight which will straighten out the Sunday baseball situation in Somerville.

Because the board of aldermen two weeks ago passed the Sunday sports bill over the veto of Mayor Leo M. Conwell, many boys on Sunday and the Sunday previous thought they had a right to play ball on the playgrounds, but police prevented them from playing.

The police say permits must be secured, and as no one was designated to grant such permits the police say baseball will not be permitted until someone is so designated.

SMITH TRIP TO BOSTON CANCELED

Boston waited in vain today for another sight of "Al" Smith, former Governor of New York, who was scheduled to visit the beside of a sick friend at the Phillips House of Massachusetts General Hospital

The Democratic standard bearer had planned to make a fast trip arriving in the morning, to visit Michael Meehan, New York broker at the hospital.

The plans were changed at the last moment and Michael Meehan Jr., son of the patient made a trip over the road instead. No reason was given for the change in plans

VIRGINIA FACULTY PLANS STUDENT DRY DRIVE

Charlottesville, Va., April 11 (INS)—Officials of the University of Virginia, founded by Taomas Jefferson, have no intention of becoming "prohibition snoopers or spies" in attempting to curb student drinking. But they are endeavoring to work out a plan whereby the students themselves will control the drinking situation.

These statements were made today by President E. A. Alderman in explaining the university's position in the so-called "whiskey rebellion" which broke out in connection with the refusal of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity and seven other chapters of national fraternities to adopt a rigid rule against drinking in the chapter houses.

"I'm not going to snoop around student gathering places to see if they drink," said President Alderman. "And neither are the deans themselves."

Our idea is not to issue any orders making spies or snoopers of our students We want to put it up to the students themselves to stop it.

"There are demands that we issue stringent orders. Under any such system the students would be getting away with something when they drank It would be a challenge We are endeavoring to work out a plan whereby the action will be taken by the students

CLARA BOW NOW CALLED TYPE

If you think that there is only one Clara Bow, you are all wrong, according to George K. Kates, head of the foreign relations department of the Paramount Studios who says that there are literally thousands of Clara Bows all over the world.

This opinion came out during the making of "The Wild Party," Clara Bow's first all-talking picture, and also her debut into the talkies. "The Wild Party" opens Saturday at the Washington St. Olympia and Fenway. Kates claims that Clara Bow is no longer an individual, but a type.

"One informant in a foreign branch recently wrote that the shock of his life came while strolling down an old lane in Spain he came face to face with two Andalusian girls wearing their hair exactly as does Clara Bow and looking strikingly like her," says Kates.

IRVING BERLIN WILL DIRECT NEW FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.

NEW YORK, April 11—Meet Irving Berlin, motion picture director! You've heard of him as a writer of popular songs, but this is the first time you've seen him in the guise of a motion picture director. This is how it happened. Berlin is out in Hollywood, where all things are judged from a motion picture standpoint. He was engaged to write the songs for Al Jolson's next picture, "Mammy."

The songs in any Jolson picture are necessarily the biggest part of the scenario, so Berlin was invited by Darryl Zanuck to sit in on the writing of "Mammy." Berlin had ideas—so much so that Jack Warner offered him a contract to direct Jolson, and, strange as it may seem, he accepted. Presto Change the song writer became a director.

Now Zanuck, Al Jolson and Irving Berlin are in Palm Springs preparing the scenario for Berlin's first directorial effort, and incidentally Jolson's operatic talkie.

NEW YORK has a new movie hero in Chester Morris—not that he belongs exclusively to New York, for probably when "Alibi" is released elsewhere he will find that his fan mail is increasing. Young Morris did so well in the part of Chick Williams in "Alibi" that all New York is talking about him.

Joseph Schenck must have realized that this would happen, for Morris' visit to New York must end April 20, when he returns to Hollywood to play the lead in "Three Live Ghosts." This time he becomes a hero, instead of a villyun. Maybe that will please him.

JOAN CRAWFORD, who has proved that she can wear smart clothes with the best of them, will have no chance to trot out her 1929 models in her next picture. It is to be "Jungle," a tale of primitive life in South America, and you know what those stories are. Usually the heroine wears a grass skirt and a flower in her hair.

Sylvia Thalberg, young sister of Irving Thalberg and a budding young author of her own, and Frank Butler are adapting "Jungle" from a magazine story by C. E. Scroogins. This, by the bye, is Joan's second starring vehicle, and Jack Conway has been elected to direct her.

BROADWAY is being paged more and more consistently by Hollywood. William Courtney, the husband of Virginia Harned, and one of the stage's most successful actors, has been persuaded to try Hollywood. He leaves New York very shortly and will take his first lesson in facing the camera in Pauline Frederick's next picture, "Evidence." Warners have signed him, and that means that he will probably remain on the coast for more than one picture.

LEO CARRILLO, who has been playing in stock in and around Los Angeles these past few months, is leaving the merry life of a trouper to become a part of Hollywood's film colony. Carrillo, to be more explicit, will make four pictures for Tiffany-Stahl. The first will be one of his stage successes, and will be made in technicolor and all-talkie, with James Flood directing. I admit it's none too clear to say "one of his stage successes," but at the moment neither Tiffany-Stahl nor Carrillo know what particular one of Mr. Carrillo's stage plays will be the first.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random by an observer: Dorothy Sebastian and Clarence Brown dancing well enough at the Cocoanut Grove to win applause. Hal Wallace taking Louise Fazenda to the circus. Janet Gaynor spending the week-end at a new country club in the foothills. Joseph Schenck investing in a new automobile. Mary Pickford driving past the United Artists Theater to see the lineup waiting to get a look at "Coquette." Sally Eilers with Buster West at the Montemarte. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

FIRST TEN FLAG ANSWERS NEXT SUNDAY

Thousands of boys and girls participating in the grand patriotic Flag Contest now being conducted by the United States Flag Association will be happy to know that the first 10 official answers will be printed in the Boston Sunday Advertiser next Sunday.

The Boston Evening American, regional sponsoring newspaper for the New England section of the Nation-wide Flag Contest, will from time to time print the remaining answers.

Contestants should keep in mind the fact that they have but two more days in which to file their answers and accompanying essay with heads of local flag units. The rule is very strict relative to this phase of the contest.

Heads of contest units have no alternative in the matter and under no circumstances will they accept any papers from contestants after April 12.

During the next two days contestants who have not as yet filed their papers with local flag unit heads, should make sure that they have followed the rules and regulations.

Remember, do not fail to file your papers by Friday. Failure to do this may disqualify you from further participation in the contest.

Ball Clubs Back Won't Be Long Player Numbers Council Passes

—By NICK FLATLEY—

BOTH Boston ball clubs get home today. The season is just around the corner, regardless of snow and winds and low temperature. The Sox work out a bit at their own ball yard this p. m., while the Braves will not arrive until evening.

The two clubs finished up their road careers in fine style, smattering some minor teams as they should be smattered by big leaguers. Things are all set for a good opening of one more year, provided we get a little reasonable weather.

Nick Flatley

Our Braves have a game at Worcester tomorrow with that very fine Holy Cross outfit. Then the two Hub teams get together Saturday and Sunday, for a final warming up that should furnish a real spark to the fan fires.

Judge Fuchs wants to beat the Red Sox, and Bill Carrigan would consider the spring a perfect success if he could grab off two more from the Tribe. And the boys, as advance sales and requests show, all want to see these wars.

Interest is steaming up in the Mello-Dundee scrap. That's as near a championship affair as Boston has been offered in quite a few years.

DO baseball fans want to have the players numbered, as are the gridiron heroes? There seems to be a lot of sentiment in favor of that notion, judging by the letters that roll in.

"Why don't the Boston clubs number their players," queries Allston Fan, "like the Yanks are going to? We all know the regular players, of course, but there are a lot of new kids breaking in these days.

"Some times we don't hear what the announcers yell, and from some spots in the bleachers it's hard to read the scoreboards without breaking your neck. Good, big numbers, which could be found easily on the score card would settle all that.

"The Yanks are doing it to please the customers. Those birds don't shift their lineup once a month. On crowded days the players are so far away that you can't recognize them, but you would know 'em if they had numbers like the football boys."

Numbering players is a simple matter, if the fans want it. Some of the boys who have played here in the last few years probably were glad to escape any extra recognition. It would be interesting to hear from the cash customers on this little matter.

Looks like a great golf year. Three of the two favorites were knocked off in the first round of the North and South.

JUDGE FUCHS, who is in Boston waiting to join up with his ball club, gets his laughs out of life, despite more than one mortal's share of troubles. He has a new story with a whimsical twist every day.

The maid who takes care of the judge's suite at his hotel remarked yesterday morning that her little boy was asking for the judge.

"How is the boy?" asked the kind-hearted manager, learning at the instant of the existence of said youth.

"He's fine," chirped the proud mother. "He thinks the world of you and the Braves. He's always talking about you."

So the kind-hearted manager shelled out a couple of invites for the opening game, and a few passes for the Sunday row with the Red Sox. The thankful mother was departing when the judge asked: "How old is your little boy?"

"He's just 36 this week."

He should join the Knothole gang.

A few more of our spring days and the Bruins will be called back to open the season.

THERE have been rumors and stories about Brave passes for members of the City Council. The law makers, who had more or less trouble with the club during the winter, did not receive the season's greetings, when those Annies were mailed out last week.

So the boys started to worry. They viewed the situation with alarm. It developed that the club president, who holds anything but fond memories of some of our law makers, decided that it might be a mistake to mail out ducats. Things might be said, or—laugh this off—some indignant young man might send one back.

So the Pres. decided that he would give each of the councillors passes, provided they asked for the same. So there's another mystery explained.

Golf Service Stages Show

The New England Golf Service Bureau, at its annual meeting, voted to hold an equipment show. It also adopted a new program of standardized accounting. Delegates were present from the five Newton clubs. Fred C. Hood, president was in charge

THREE N. E. AMATEURS WIN TITLES

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1929

Cold Prevents Sox Working Out at Fens

New National Champ Had Hard Road to Title Peak

Leslie Baker of Watertown, national boxing champion in the 147-pound class, was ready to quit the boxing game last year owing to a bad left hand. After considerable encouragement from a few friends and his physician, Dr. Thomas Broderick of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, the hand was repaired.

Baker, after nearly a year of rest, came back to win the New England championship last month. Using his left mitt more than his right he won the national title.

On entering the ring in the finals of the nationals, Baker's left eye was completely closed. Baker was holding his own in the first chapter of their three-round engagement. The Watertown lad then shoved out a stiff left and sent a follow-up with a right to the jaw which sent Lauson to the canvas for a count of nine in the second frame.

In the third Baker held the New York lad off with enough class to bring the national title to Greater Boston.

SQUAD IS IN FINE SHAPE

A strong, cold east wind swept across the Fens today and prevented the workout Manager Bill Carrigan had scheduled for his Red Sox, who arrived in town early this morning.

The field was in fine shape, considering yesterday's rain and snow, but the weather was entirely too chilly for baseball, and the Fenway pilot decided to wait until tomorrow before resuming practice for the series with the Braves.

The hundred or more fans who trekked out to the park to get a glimpse at the new Sox machine didn't make the trip entirely in vain, however, as all the battery men with the exception of Big Ed Morris jumped into uniform and warmed up for about 30 minutes just to keep their salary wings in shape.

The pitchers have already been selected for the game with the Braves. Ruffing, Morris, Russell, and Gaston probably will work in the city frays. The boys have not been north long enough to risk their arms in a full nine-inning game.

And the Hose mound squad looks so good that Manager Carrigan will not do anything that might hurt the Sox chances for a good season.

Right now the Red Sox, judging them on their recent training war performances, are due to give their foes a flood of trouble. The Sox open the league schedule in New York with the Yankees next Tuesday.

Even when the Sox were not going so well even against poor second division clubs, they stepped up and made the Yanks fight every bit of the way. And the Hose feel they will force the world champions to step this year, too.

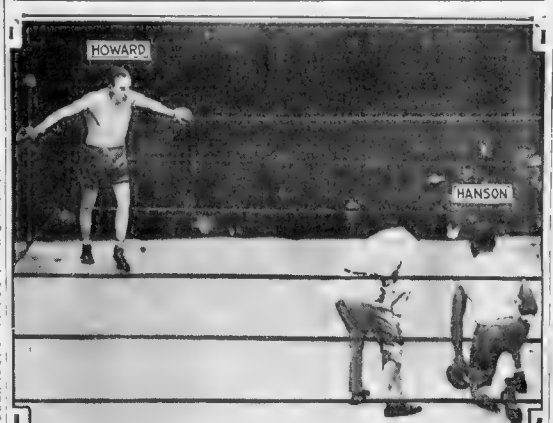
DE VITO CLASHES WITH PINTO

Joe DeVito, brilliant young Italian heavyweight from Providence, and Stanley Pinto, Bohemian heavyweight champion, will head the all-star wrestling card in the Grand Opera House tonight.

Stan Zbyszko, former champion of the world, will appear in the semifinal bout against Ned McGuire, Irish giant. Jack Rodgers Wyoming cowboy who has been winning victory after victory in the hinterlands, will meet Dan Koloff, Balkan champion; and the great and only John Klonis, king of roughneck grapplers, will return to a local ring to meet his old rival, Charlie Melro.

DeVito rules a favorite. He is the best Italian wrestler to come to the front since the time of George Calza, and critics agree unanimously that he is already a better wrestler than Calza was in his prime. He has never met defeat in a Boston ring, and though Pinto is sure to give him the hardest battle he has ever had, yet DeVito is a 10 to 9 favorite.

SLEEPY CITY BOY CONQUERS FOE



BATTERS OPPONENT

In a semifinal bout in the national amateur title tilts at the Arena, Elmer Howard, Philadelphia, defeated Charles Hanson, New York, in two rounds. The terrific attack of Howard, who won in the finals, was too much for the Gotham lad.

HOLDEN, BAKER AND LOPEZ WIN CROWNS

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Three New England lads went home today with national championship medals, which they won after three days of battling at the Boston Arena.

The annual amateur boxing championships proved a howling success.

About 10,000 fans roared their approval as the simon pures battled. Some of the boys were tired and weary although the boners standing before them gave them courage to pound away until the final gong.

Those to win for New England were Athleta Holden of the Providence A. C., who won in the 118-pound division; Leslie Baker of Watertown, who took the honors in the 147-pound class and Ray "Twin" Lopez who took the 160-pound crown on a foul.

HALAIKO DEFENDS

The only boxer to come into the ratio ranks and successfully defend his title was Steve Halaiko of the Oriole A. C. of Buffalo. Halaiko defeated Joe Bernal of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, Cal. in the final.

Baker was impressive in the 147-pound class when he defeated Eric Lauson of New York City. Baker, with his left eye closed, did well to come through.

The final night of the nationals gave a satisfactory demonstration of boxing and fighting by the simon purse. Twenty-four bouts were on the card.

Jimmy Kerr of the Furniture Post, American Legion of Grand Rapids, Michigan, was the first of our New England champions to be crowned at the Arena.

Kerr, 112 pound champion, defeated Augie Curtis in three stiff rounds of boxing to take the title.

Six Veterans on Newton Ball Squad

Coach John L. Sullivan of the Newton high baseball nine is holding workouts at the high school field in preparation for the team's diamond campaign.

The six veterans on the squad: Reilly, pitcher; Fletcher, captain and shortstop; Mullen, left field; Wilson, catcher; Payne and Olcott, first basemen, seem assured of places in the first string lineup.

The new material which shows promise is composed of the following players: Annese, catcher; Nichols, Pillion, Kraher and Murphy, pitchers; Dunn, W. Warren and Colby, second basemen; Barry, third baseman, and Elrod right fielder.

The opening game of the season will be played at Lawrence on Saturday, with the high school team of that city furnishing the opposition.

Leader Shakes Up Yale Varsity Crew

New Haven, Ct., April 11—Yale's varsity crew was the scene today of an almost complete reorganization which Coach Ed Leader effected after voicing dissatisfaction with the way the former combination worked in a rainy workout on the Housatonic River this morning.

At the end of the trial run, this morning, the Eli mentor ousted two men from the first boat and promoted three junior varsity oarsmen to take their places in the first shell.

Snively to Assist Brown Grid Coach

Providence, April 11—A. Barr Snively, Princeton, '24, has been appointed assistant football coach at Brown University, according to the announcement made by Dr. Fred W. Marvel, athletic director. He has signed a one-year contract as McLaughry's first lieutenant.

Hoyt to Open for Yanks Against Sox

Atlanta, Ga., April 11 (INS)—Waite Hoyt, star right-hander, will pitch for the New York Yankees in the opening game of the season against the Boston Red Sox in New York next Saturday, Manager Miller Huggins announced today

TILDEN TO SEEK FRENCH TITLE

Big Bill Tilden and Francis T. Hunter, America's two greatest tennis players at the present time, will invade Europe next month with a real, although somewhat odd, purpose—to gain the French national singles championship, which has always eluded United States representatives.

Bent on reciprocation, the combination will board the Aquitania on May 8 in order to reach Paris for the French title play on the Auteuil courts, beginning May 18.

In addition to attempting to displace Henry Cochet as singles king, Tilden and Hunter will strive in the doubles contention. America's Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey, since become professionals, won in 1926.

Green Teams in Outdoor Workouts

Hanover, N. H, April 11—Spring arrived in Hanover officially though accompanied by a cold wave when the Dartmouth baseball, lacrosse and track teams reported outdoors.

Coach Tesreau had his staff of hitters working out [illegible] Rolfe, Boosin and Brooks showed to advantage in the heavy slugging.

Coach Hazelton took over the diamond with his freshman team and both the varsity and freshman squads seemed to take new life with their first chance to get in some real out of doors practice, the first this season in Hanover.

Coach Hillman's varsity track team had the use of the outdoor track and limbered up easily during the afternoon, to be followed by Coach Harvey Cohn's yearling squad.

U. S. Asks Change in Tennis Match Dates

Amsterdam, April 11 (AP)—The Dutch Tennis Association has received a request from the United States Lawn Tennis Association to change the dates of the matches to be played under Davis Cup conditions by women's teams of Holland and the United States from the eleventh and twelfth of May to the twelfth and thirteenth to allow Helen Wills to be presented at the British Court on the ninth or tenth of that month.

Babe to Retire in '31 To Let Waist Grow

Babe Ruth was quoted as saying that he would retire from baseball in 1931.

"In two more years I will have been in the game 18 years. I expect to retire then and I'm going to enjoy life and let my waistline grow," said the Babe.

Marines Defeat Harvard, 6 to 3

Quantico, Va., April 11—Harvard went down to defeat at the hands of the Marine team, 6 to 3. The devil dogs sent Smith to the mound to stop the hard hitting Crimson team and he pitched a fine brand of baseball.

B.C.H. Grid, Baseball Teams Work Hard

By DICK McSWEENEY

Boston College high is another school where spring football practice is in vogue

Coach Art McManus of the Maroon and Gold squad decided to limit the workouts at this time because of the fact that B. C. high opens its fall football campaign 10 days after the opening of school sessions.

By holding passing practice now, McManus will be able to mold a few plunges and [illegible] in the middle of the season, that they will be all ready to start against their next opponent.

Georgetown Has Formidable Golf and Tennis Teams

STRONG ON TRACK, ALSO

Hilltoppers Expect to Win the Championship in All Three Branches of Sport

Washington, D. C., April 17 (AP)—Unless its golf and tennis teams finish at the top of the intercollegiate heap this year, Georgetown University will consider its spring athletic season very nearly a failure.

The fast-growing prominence of these two sports on the Hilltop program almost conceals the fact that the veteran John O'Reilly has another good track team, possibly a great one.

The white-haired mentor, who for a generation has been developing relay teams that have brought national and international notice, again is pointing for the Penn relays and the intercollegiate championships.

GREAT GOLFERS

With Maurice McCarthy, college golfing champion in 1928, and three promising Detroit linksmen, Bob Manning, Robert Weister and Jack Foley, Georgetown hopes to improve over last year, when it lost the intercollegiate team championship to Princeton, and McCarthy is expected to repeat his victory in the individual event.

Besides these, Mark Flanagan, New York; Dick Wilson, Southern Pines, N. C.; Jimmy Flynn, St. Louis, and Chick Yeger, Newark, N. J., must be included among the mashie wielders available for the intercollegiates. There is not a senior in the group; an are juniors or sophomores.

Gregory Mangin, No. 13 in the national tennis rankings, is the principal reason for optimism among followers of Georgetown's net activities. With Mangin, who plays No. 1, are Emmett Pare, three times western indoor champion and ranked first in the intermountain sector, Fred Meamer and Kip Callan. All of these are eligible for at least one more year of competition after the present season.

"You can't beat the California team," is John O'Reilly's way of answering questions about his track squad. In the thin-clad sport Georgetown also is placing much reliance on second year men, particularly in the track events.

ADELMAN STANDS OUT.

Two huskies stand out on the squad, Dave Adelman, who copped the indoor intercollegiate shot-put, and Leo Sexton, decathlon entrant, who specializes in the shot and lifting his 210-pound frame over the high jump crossbar. These two, with Karl Wildermuth, sprinter, are counted on heavily for the Pennsylvania feature. O'Reilly has scheduled but one dual meet.

The mile relay team is below par but the two-mile quartet is accounted a good chance. "We have a fine freshman relay team," the coach said, with a look reminiscent of his expression two years ago when a Stiel and Gray yearling quartet splashed through ankle-deep mud at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, to win the mile event with yards to spare.

3 Ryder Cup Players Lose at Roehampton

London, April 11 (AP)—Three of the British Ryder Cup players who qualified for the Roehampton tournament were eliminated in the first round of match play. Ted Ray defeated Abe Mitchell, five and four; J. G. Sherlock won from Fred Robson, one up, and Tom Renouf downed R. A. Whitcombe, two and one.

Archie Compston won from Bert Hodson, who led the qualifiers, two up. Compston gained the match out after being four down.

Henry Cotton defeated Charles Johns, one up; C. A. Whitcombe took Alex Herd into camp, three and two, and C. Gray won from H. C. Finch on the 21st hole.

Three members of the British Ryder Cup squad picked up speed in the second round, however. Cotton eliminated the veteran Ray, 7 and 6; Archie Compston defeated Gray, 3 and 2, and C. A. Whitcombe put out F. G. Holden of Roehampton, 3 and 2. Tom Renouf was hard pressed to defeat Sherlock one up.

Jouce Wethered Wins in 'Comeback'

London, April 11 (AP)—Miss Joyce Wethered, former British golf champion, who will emerge from retirement to play in the championship at St. Andrews next month, started her new campaign in competitive golf today.

The great woman player headed a Surrey team in a match against Kent at Walton Heath. Surrey won, five matches to two. Miss Wethered defeated Miss Dorothy Pearson, runner-up for the British championship in 1927, 5 and 4.

BUSY SEASON FOR HARNESS RACERS

Notwithstanding the wet weather during the first half of March, all of the horses in the souther training camps were kept on the move, the most of the Georgia outfits being limited to road work.

Fred Egan has the training barn at Lullwater farm full of racing material.

The aged division is led by Louis Direct, which he put in the 2-minute list at Lexington last October, Bogalusa the great, Lullwast, and Lucy Lullwater, a sister to The Senator.

All of them have been named in grand circuit fixtures where classes could be found for them. They will be ready for fast work when the stable is shipped to Lexington this month.

For the year's 2-year-old events Lullwater farm has its Hambletonian candidate Egan by Bogalusa. Stone Mountain will be seen in the pacing races.

Dynamite Gus Meets Ganson on Salem Mat

Gus Sonnenberg, the world's heavyweight champion wrestler has signed to meet Jack Ganson of Calfornia at the North st., rink, Salem, April 15.

There was a boxing contest booked for the rink on that date but the local fight promoter gave way to the wrestlers so the people of Salem might see the champion in action.

Ice Star Recovering From Operation

Art Morrisey, big Boston College hockey defenseman, is slowly recovering from an operation for appendicitis which he underwent during the Easter holidays.

Morrisey, a senior, is not back in class but is expected to be in school within two weeks.

Mack Decides on Starting Lineup

Philadelphia, April 11 (AP)—After weeks of experimenting and shifting his players about due to injuries or lack of condition, Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics has decided on the team to open the season next week.

"Hale will start at third," Mack said, "with Foxx at first, Bishop at second and Dykes or Hassler at short. I have French in reserve for the outfield in case anything happens to Summa. Haas or Miller. Should Haas become incapacitated, I will post Orwoll in center.

"I will depend on seven seasoned pitchers to start—Walberg, Grove, Quinn, Rommel, Earnshaw, Ehmke and Yerkes."

Manager Shotton of the Phillies expects to open the season here with Friberg at short in place of the injured Thevenow. His pitchers are all in shape, and regulars will be in their usual places. The team has displayed a batting punch in the series with the Athletics and Shotton is confident it will be the surprise of the National League race.

Birmingham, Ala., April 11 (AP)—The Yankees cut loose with some of their real big-time hitting against the Birmingham barons, pounding three pitchers for 16 hits and 10 runs. Lou Gehrig made a homer in the second and a triple in the ninth. Babe Ruth confined his efforts to singles. Waite Hoyt pitched seven innings.

Charlotte, N. C., April 11 (AP)—The Giants and the Washington teams were worked out by a downpour which stopped the game in a 2-to-2 tie. The teams barely had time to finish the fifth inning after Mel Ott's third successive hit had brought Reese home with the tieing run before the storm broke.

Atlanta, Ga., April 11 (AP)—After having slaughtered the Atlanta Crackers Tuesday the Brooklyn Robins returned to their old form of fumbling and hitting into double plays and the Crackers reversed the decision 4 to 2. Three of Atlanta's four runs were products of Brooklyn errors.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 11 (AP)—Gredy Adkins, the Arkansas "Butcher Boy," is ready. Manager Bleckburne of the White Sox sent Adkins against the Louisville club with instructions to go the nine route, if able. Adkins was able, as indicated by the five hits given the Colonels.

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The Washington Nationals were in their own backyard today to show the home folks some of the sensation of the spring exhibition games, holding two victories over the New York Giants. Manager Johnson has primed "Bumpo" Hadley or Adolph Liska for the day's pitching assignment.

Memphis, Tenn., April 11 (AP)—Capt. Pie Traynor was due to play third base for the Pittsburgh Pirates in today's exhibition with the Chicksaws, to see just how much his defective hip had improved. "I'm all right again and I must have some practice," Pie told Manager Donie Bush. Bush consented to let him try it.

Kansas City, Mo., April 11 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs were taking a rest today before tackling the Kansas City Blues in the first of a three-game series tomorrow. This series will complete the Cubs' training schedule.

Tulsa, Okla., April 11 (AP)—A home run by a rookie outfielder, Tom Jenkins, clinched a victory for the St. Louis Browns over the Tulsa Oilers and showed that Herb Cobb, another recruit, is about ready for the big show. He left the Oilers down with one hit in four innings.

Shreveport, La., April 11 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers are on their way north with a disastrous training season behind them. They wound up the southern trip by taking another beating from Pittsburgh, 10 to 6. It was reported today that the Tigers are seeking Marty Koenig from the Yankees or Bill Hunnefield from the White Sox to fill in the gap at shortstop.

N. E. BOYS WIN RING TITLES

ling throughout the three rounds wearing down Augie Curtis of Los Angeles, Cal., who did well in coming out for the finals.

HOLDEN WINS

Albion Holden brought the first title to New England when he swept through the 118-pound class defeating Mose Butch of the Willow A. C. Pittsburgh. The new champion in the 118-pound division boxed like a champion throughout the tourney.

Ray "Twin" Lopez of Boston won the 160-pound division when he was fouled by Ray Trambke of Rockport, Illinois, in the opening round of their bout.

Lopez was suffering from a poor left wing.

Martin Zuniga of the Los Angeles A. C. and Pacific Coast champion showed his superior skill over grabbing off the 126-pound title. Zuniga just boxed away at an even pace to win the honors and the applause of the fans.

Steve Halaiko, last year's National title holder, easily defended his title in the lightweight class when he won from Joe Barnes, Olympic Club, San Francisco, Cal.

Amherst Tennis Team to Play Harvard

Amherst, April 11—The 1929 tennis schedule as released by the Amherst College committee on student activities finds two new colleges listed.

Harvard and Union, to be played on May 4 and 10, respectively, were not listed last year, and they bring the number of matches to 10.

The schedule: April 20, Springfield at Amherst; April 24, Brown at Amherst; April 26, M. I. T. at Amherst; May 1, Yale at New Haven; May 4, Harvard at Cambridge; May 8, Rowdoin at Amherst; May 10, Union at Amherst; May 15, Williams at Amherst; May 20-22, N. E. I. T. A. at Boston; May 25, West Point at West Point, June 1, Wesleyan at Middletown.

Jordan Downs Lyons in Title Pool Match

Fred Jordan, ex-New England pocket billiard champion, regained his title when he defeated Peaches Lyons of Charlestown, 150 to 140, in the finest exhibition of pool ever staged at the Huntington Club.

Lyons won the title in the State billiard tournament a week ago.

HARRY O'BOYLE COACH AT H. C.

Worcester, April 11—Harry W O'Boyle of East Des Moines, Ia., who played football at Notre Dame in 1923, on the freshman team and in '24, '25 and '26 on the varsity eleven, was signed by head coach Cleo O'Donnell of the Holy Cross College football team to assist him as backfield coach of the Crusaders in 1929.

O'Boyle is 24 years of age and played football and baseball in his high school days at East Des Moines. He entered Notre Dame in 1923 and made the freshman team.

The next year he made the varsity and played at halfback as sub for Jim Crowley of the "four horsemen."

He played halfback in 1925 and fullback in 1926, winning his letter the three years he played on the eleven. He was assistant coach of the University of Nevada football team in 1927, and in 1928 he played professional football in Green Bay, Wis.

Lowell Fans Back Mello in Garden Go With Dundee

DUNDEE HAS 10-9 EDGE IN BETTING

Win or Lose Tomorrow, Mello to Post Forfeit to Clinch Title War

Thousands of Lowell fistic fans, who regard Al Mello, the Spindle City southpaw, as the uncrowned welterweight champion of the world, are planning to invade the Hub again tomorrow night in hopes of seeing their favorite make it two victories in a row over the titleholder, Joe Dundee of Baltimore, in the big charity boxing carnival at the Boston Garden.

Although the champion has been installed as a 10 to 9 favorite in this second meeting, in spite of the fact that Mello beat him once Lowell fans expect to make an other cleanup.

Bobby Gobman, manager of Mello, announced today he is prepared to post a forfeit of $2500 to bind a title match whether Mello wins or loses tomorrow night. The bout for the championship to take place either in New York or Boston.

Mello will step into the ring against the champion this time in better condition than at any time during his career. Never before has he trained so hard for he regards Dundee as the hardest hitting welterweight in the game today. Mello does not deny that the champion had him hanging on a couple of times in their first bout, yet he feels confident that he will beat the titleholder again.

MEET THE NEW BRAVES

No. 9—Richard Smith

Richard Smith, husky backstop, is more famous as a football player. He was a regular guard on that great Beckne team that haunted the four horsemen. Dick, who is a sorrel top, was born in Combined Locks, Wis., 23 years ago. He played ball at Notre Dame, and during summers traveled with the Giants, McGraw liking his looks and figuring that the experience would help him. The New York manager let him go to Montreal where he did considerable catching for the last two years. He batted .314 in both campaigns The Braves gathered him up in the draft. He is a pro football star and has been playing with the New York Giants. He intends to organize a Boston team this fall.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

A blizzard such as raged Wednesday, offered little in the way of inspiration for a golf column.

According to President Alex Chisholm, the Sandy Burr Country Club has acquired many new members since the bond and initiation fee requirements were abolished. The Sandy Burr Country Club offers clubhouse and playing privileges for the sum of $100 and many golfers have already taken advantage of this new proposition.

As soon as the news leaked out last fall that Sandy Burr was in financial difficulties, a well known golfer sent a check to the club and enclosed a note stating that he had sufficient enjoyment at the Burr to warrant his action.

Irrespective of the fact that Sandy Burr was badly in need of funds, they returned the check with thanks and then turned around and elected the sender an honorary member. Enough said for both parties.

It is rumored that the New England Professional Golfers' Association championship will be staged at Oyster Bay. Although Oyster Bay is new it is a wonderful layout and the pros would be guaranteed a fine time by the members.

It was a foregone conclusion that immediately the Women's Golf Association of Boston season rolled around the weather would turn wintrish. The women are forced to play annually in the most unseasonable weather and they have now become accustomed to these conditions.

But seldom have they ever agreed that the weather was too bad for play, and there are few postponements in the annals of W. G. A. competition.

Bob Kennedy of Royal and Tiger fame is back on the job and going better than ever.

Bert Nicoll timed his return to the Belmont Spring Country Club perfectly to miss the summer weather. Bert returned from Pinehurst and was forced to battle his way to the club against a raging blizzard.

The popular Belmont professional is now a full fledged airplot, and is planning to have Abe Mitchell double in brass; club maker in the shop and mechanic at the airport.

The South Shore Country Club will hold a special meeting next week at which time the members will ratify the election of Jim Kimball as president. Kimball was elected last month to the presidency but it was discovered that the by-laws call for the annual meeting to be held in February and the election was declared invalid.

It would be to the advantage of the South Shore Country Club to have as big president a live wire of the Jim Kimball type. Years ago, Jim Kimball put Hingham on the map as one of the best baseball towns on the South Shore and there is every reason for believing that he could do the same with the country club.

Due to the remarkably fine condition of the Woodland Golf Club, Carl Treat has established himself as one of the most proficient greenskeepers in New England.

Without exception Woodland is in better playing condition than any of the local courses. The tees, fairways and greens are at their best and the members have been singing the praises of Treat for weeks.

Woodland is planning to stretch a trap along in front of the fifth green, which will force players to shoot for the green and eliminate the present run up from a short shot.

Walter Howe, the midget professional, is off to a fine start at the Wellesley Country Club. Walter is one of the most popular pros in New England and will prove a fine asset to Wellesley.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"I DO not believe in a champion boxer getting tangled up in social life," Joe Dundee, boss of the welterweight division, told Mr. Boston. "I stick closely to my training so that I can give the fans a run for their money when I get into the ring.

"I do feel that a champion should be represented in the social whirl and I leave that job to Max Waxman, my manager. He dons the party clothes and makes whoopee when he feels it is for the best interests of the firm of Dundee & Co. for him to do so.

"A manager of a first-class fighter must be a sort of a man about town. Nowadays most of the big matches are closed in some night club at about 2 a. m.

"Most managers of boxers have offices, but they are merely places where they get their mail and have a friendly card game. The real business of the racket is done after midnight when there is a general letting down of things."

Mr. Boston took a peek at the champion

"You look as though you're down to the title weight right now," piped the veteran.

"I'm between 147 and 148 pounds," replied Dundee. "I never have any trouble about making 147 pounds I'm a natural welterweight.

"Do you worry about losing your title?" pressed Mr. Boston.

"I don't, but Waxman does," declared Dundee laughingly. "Max has a greater love for the welterweight championship than he has for money. That's some love. When I get into a fight, I forget all about the fact I'm a welterweight champion of the world. I'm in there to win and the so-called title burden doesn't bother me in the least."

"HOW much money have you made since you started boxing?" asked Mr. Boston.

"Over 200 grand," chirped Joe. "I'm now 25 and I have been tossing the padded mittens around since I was 17. I started as a flyweight and kept packing on weight until I won the welterweight championship.

"I had a lot of fun on my way up to the title. I licked every welterweight contender in my path. Mickey Walker, who lost the welterweight crown to Pete Latzo, was among them. I stopped Walker in what I consider was one of the best battles of my career.

"I went on to win the title from Latzo in a 15-round mill at the Polo Grounds. It was so cold at the Polo Grounds the night I won the title that I didn't get up a perspiration even though Latzo and myself traveled the 15-round route at a lively clip."

"WHAT about Mello?" asked Mr. Boston.

"I'll knock him out," said Dundee with much feeling.

"He says he will do as much for you," chirped Mr. Boston. "Remember, he had you on the canvas in your last tussle."

"Oh, I admit Mello can sock," answered the champion "but he won't nail me flush this time. I'm wise to his style In our last bout, Al was bobbing around. He came out of a crouching position and cracked me on the chin with a left hook before I knew what it was all about. You can leave his left hand home this time for all the good it will be to him.

"I AM going to fight my own battle this time. Waxman has a habit of telling me to go easy when the other fellow is shooting with both hands. That's not my natural style. I like to walk in and punch it out with the other fellow.

"That's the way I'm going to battle Friday night."

MATCHMAKER EDDIE MACK of the Garden then stepped into the picture and told Joe it was time for them to resume their tour around to the various newspaper offices.

"Yeah, I'm going to punch it out with Mello this time," said Dundee as he started for the elevator.

HUSKY TRACK MEN INJURED

Accidents were frequent at the initial practice sessions of the Northeastern University track team Monday and Tuesday.

Francis Shea, stellar relay runner indoors, took a bad spill while practicing the low hurdles. The upper portion of his legs were badly scraped.

The injuries will not put him on the shelf completely, and he is expected to be in shape for the coming meet with Tufts, April 20.

Ed Ficher complained of a knee injury at the close of the practice, and Coach Parsons give it his immediate attention.

McKenney Plans Work for Grid Season

Boston College has no spring football practice but the sport is not completely overlooked during the months at the Heights. Coach Joe McKenney is an almost daily visitor to the A. A. offices at B. C. and football conferences with Frank Reynolds, graduate manager, are frequent.

Joe has plans ready for next season. He's not only preparing mentally but also physically. He is taking a course in Jack Ryder's school of exercising in order to keep his waist-line down.

YALE GRID MEN WORKOUT TODAY

New Haven, Ct., April 11—Mal Stevens, Yale football head coach ordered a squad of more than a hundred candidates for the spring practice session of three weeks to report today.

He said that hard work, actual gridiron play and strenuous daily drills would be scheduled.

The coaching staff for next season has not been selected, but Stevens will be assisted by a temporary set of coaches, several of whom were present last fall and are expected to be reappointed.

Lost Love, Poloist Gives Up Life

London, April 11 (AP) A hopeless love affair is thought to have been the motive which caused Capt John Pitt Dening, international polo player, who was found shot in a London hotel Tuesday night, to take his life.

NEW NINES IN BANK LEAGUE

Eight teams were admitted into the Bankers' and Brokers' Baseball League at the organization meeting.

The four banks represented are the Atlantic National, the National Shawmut, New England Trust and National Rockland. The brokerage houses are Weld, Grew & Co Whitney & Elwell, Stone, Webster & Blodgett and Gurnett & Co.

Six more bank and brokerage houses were represented at the meeting and four of these probably will be added to the league by Monday. One of the surprises of the afternoon was the decision of the Old Colony Trust Co. to remain out of the league the coming year.

WE went to London because it is recognized as the authoritative source of men's style in shoes. And we went to Allen & Bridge because they are recognized as one of the best bespoke bootmakers in England, and we selected this style because it is worn by the best dressed men in London.

"Style Unabridged" means that the Regal Reproduction has every Style detail of the Original English Model—made by hand by Allen & Bridge

This decorative Model is known in England as a Semi-Brogue. It has a punched and notched toe-cap, and this same decorative treatment runs around the vamp-line, outside counter and top.

The Regal Reproduction is an exact copy of this original style, even to the design of the tip center and the Waukenphast Welt on the sole. The two models are identical in appearance from the invisible eyelets to the steel slugged heels.

Allen & Bridge describe the sole as an oak bark tanned middling substance", and that is what we use. The upper leather in Allen & Bridge's original is an imported Calfskin tanned in Osterwyk, Holland, and in the Regal Reproduction we use the same identical tannage.

But there is a difference. Allen & Bridge's shoe is made and sold in London. Our shoes are sewn by the same machines as practically all high-priced American shoes. In Allen & Bridge's shop only 4 men handle the shoe from the time it is cut until it is finished. In our factory, about 150 different persons perform some operation on a Regal shoe.

Our VOLUME makes this VALUE possible. WE MAKE ONE THOUSAND PAIR TO ALLEN & BRIDGE'S ONE PAIR.

Martha Lee Tells of Spring Salads

AS promised—here are the new spring salads, guaranteed to put fresh "wim, wigor and witality" into the human form divine and banish those "growing pains."

We'll start off with a very good jellied vegetable salad.

JELLIED VEGETABLE SALAD

Soak 1 tbsp. gelatin in ¼ c. cold water 5 minutes. Add 1 c. boiling water. When dissolved add ⅛ c. sugar, 1 tsp. salt, 6 tbsps. lemon juice. Let cool. When beginning to stiffen add ½ c. celery cut up small, ½ c. finely shredded crisp and tender cabbage, ½ c. canned peas, 1½ cans pimentos. Turn into a mold. Let stiffen, serve on beds of lettuce with French dressing to which has been added 3 tbsps. heavy cream.

Next, a real spring salad that guaranteed to put flu germs to rout if freely indulged in

SPRING SALAD

2 large boiled beets.
2 tbsps. minced parsley.
2 hard cooked eggs.
French dressing.
1 bunch young green onions.
Endive or lettuce.

Slice beets thinly and marinate in French dressing to which parsley has been added. Slice also the green onions and the egg whites. Arrange the beets, onions and egg whites attractively on beds of endive or lettuce. Mash the egg yolks, moisten with French dressing drained from the beets, then shape into tiny balls, roll in paprika and use as a garnish.

Spinach can be a delicious and wonderfully good salad if you're on the know? Here's how.

SPINACH SALAD

1 small onion.
¼ c. finely-c t celery.
1 tsp. salt.
2 tbs. spinach.
½ c. French dressing.
Lettuce.
2 hard cooked e gs.

Wash the spinach very thoroughly and cook in its own juice with 1 tsp. salt until tender. Drain and chop. Chill and add the onion finely chopped and the celery finely cut. Moisten with highly seasoned French dressing. Place in buttered individual molds, chill thoroughly, turn out on lettuce leaves. Garnish with the hard cooked eggs sliced lengthwise.

And string beans are equally good.

STRING BEAN SALAD

1 qt. cooked string beans.
¼ tsp. salt.
3 hard cooked egg yolks.
½ c. lemon juice.
1 ½ c. minced Bermuda onions.
1 c. chopped pecan or walnut meats.
½ tsp. white pepper.
1 c. chopped celery or lettuce.
3 tbsps. salad oil

Rub the egg yolks to a paste, add the salt, lemon juice and oil; stir through the beans and let them stand for 30 minutes or more. Just before serving add the chopped nuts, minced onions, chopped celery and pepper. Serve with plain bread and butter sandwiches. This will be sufficient for 12 guests or for the main dish at luncheon for 6.

And for the grand finale a very, very good

FRUIT SALAD

On hearts of lettuce arranged on individual salad plates place a slice of canned pineapple and peel and halve bananas lengthwise. Dip in lemon juice to prevent discoloring. Roll each half in finely chopped walnuts. Place in center of the pineapple. Slice maraschino cherries and arrange on mounds of mayonnaise.

Do these sound like more? If so, just leave me the high sign By till tomorrow

Gives Lesson

ARTHUR PARES
Chef of Rosoff's restaurant who demonstrated fine cooking at Martha Lee kitchen.

Whether or not, an excellent audience gathered in the Martha Lee Kitchen yesterday afternoon to enjoy a fine cooking lesson and demonstration by Arthur Pares, chef for the past eight years at Rosoff's popular restaurant, 97 Summer st.

This restaurant, which Mr Rosoff opened over 25 years ago, caters to a large following of regular as well as transient customers, who are quick to appreciate quality food in wide variety and popular prices.

Mr Pares demonstration included Tenderloin Steak Mexican Chicken a la King in Patties, Beef Saute Parisian and Fruit Salad a la Rosoff, recipes for which will be found in this paper next Saturday.

Taking a Back Seat, the fi wers which form some of the pert chapeaux of the spring mode hide their wearers' curls at the base of the crown in back. One black felt hat trimmed in front has its new long crown covered with a garland of white gardenias.

The Life of a Rose

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

LIKE a tiny rosebud is the shy sweet girl as she fearfully peers through widened eyes on the vista spread before her. Life is one long sweet dream, with a Prince Charming somewhere in the hazy distance. Her youth and freshness seem ever like a tiny bud unwilling to open, yet loath to remain just a bud And slowly the leaves unfold and suddenly, without any warning, we see the rose, full blown, in all its glorious beauty

And we gasp and stare and unbelieving wonder if this can be the shy rosebud which we tended so carefully but yesterday. And the glory of the rose captures all hearts. And it slowly unfolds leaf by leaf, until it is spread out in a circle of loveliness that makes one think of holy things

And slowly the full blown rose droops and each lovely petal crumbles and curls at the edges, and finally they drop one by one. And then there's nothing left except the memories of the days that were And as the rose droops she watches the other rosebuds and roses and wonders what they will think when they are withered and their short day is done

But each phase has its beauty The rosebud, with its freshness and charm the glory of the full-blown rose; and the sweet haunting perfume of the fading blossom. And ever Love with its comforting touch makes the rose happy

Dr. Bisch Explains Chemistry of the Body

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

PROTOPLASM is living material. When once chemists discover all the elements that constitute protoplasm the secret of life itself will have been found.

So far as is known, protein material is never absent from living substances. About three-fourths of the weight of protoplasm is usually water. Besides, various other substances occur in smaller proportions, such as lecithin, a kind of fat; cholesterin, and certain inorganic salts, such as the phosphates and chlorid of calcium sodium and potassium.

Protoplasm, when in the living state, is in a continued state of change.

The remarkable ability which it possesses of taking chemical substances out of the food and building itself up is known as anabolism. The breaking down processes which only this living material can carry on, is known as catabolism. The two processes together are known as metabolism

There is no need trying to remember all the known facts about protoplasm. Suffice it to say that if the individual has at least some knowledge about the wonderful chemistry of his own body, he is more likely to take better care of what he eats, how he works, how he thinks, and, in general, how he conducts himself.

The power by means of which the body works—that is, the force through which the various organs function—may be summed up in the word energy

It is a well-known fact that electricity, for example may be changed into heat, and by means of this heat food may be cooked Electricity may also be changed into light by other forms of working energy

In the human body food is burned or oxidized, and this creates the heat and energy that is required. Oxygen plays a perdominant role in the burning of the foodstuffs which yield the heat and energy for daily warmth in our various activities

You have probably heard the term Calories used. Technically speaking a calory is the amount of heat required to raise one pound of water four degrees Fahrenheit

Some foods yield more calories than others Therefore the important thing is not how much food we eat but how rich the food may be in calorie value.

The number of calories which we require for our best functioning depends somewhat upon age, occupation and size Younger persons require more calories as they are in process of growth and more energy is needed to build up the body Persons who work out-of-doors and do manual labor also tend to consume more calories per day In northern climates more heat is required to keep the body warm, therefore more calories than in southern ones.

Our food is made up largely of protein, fats, carbohydrates, hydrogen, nitrogen, and small quantities of sulphur and phosphorus.

Protein is found in the form of egg milk, blood, cheese, and leguminous vegetables such as peas, beans and lentils.

Fats are composed of carbon hydrogen, oxygen

One need not figure out the exact chemical constituents or calories of each food eaten In fact, this would be a most laborious task and would make eating quite a handship

Appetite is really the best guide there is. If you really crave a certain food, the chances are that it will do you good and that your body needs it.

Mme. Jeritza Tells of Finger-Tip Jewels

By MARIA JERITZA

WELL-MANICURED finger nails are a priceless aid to poise. If your nails have a grayish rim at the edges, ragged cuticle, are broken and uneven, you will sub-consciously seek to hide them by turning your fingers under, doubling them under palm or holding your hands out of sight All this leads to awkward self-consciousness and uneasy nerves and conscience, as well it may. There is little excuse in this day and age for unkempt, ugly nails

If you can afford it by all means go to a good manicurist once each week and let her bring the pink of perfection to your nails Then your task of keeping them so the remainder of the week should be simple.

Merely shape their tips every day or two with a long, flexible steel file, scrub them well with a long-handled nail brush and warm soapsuds each time you wash your hands, dry them carefully, push-back the cuticle with the towel and finally wrap a bit of absorbent cotton about the tip of an orange-wood stick and move it under each nail to remove dirt and stains. If you do this cleansing with your orangewood stick just after you wash your hands, while the dirt is loosened by the scrubbing, you should have no difficulty in keeping your nailends snow-white

The filing should take place immediately on arising in the morning

If you wait until you wash your hands the nails will become softened by water and will not respond nearly as well

Annoint the cuticle and matrix of your nails with white vaseline, olive oil or else a nourishing cold cream every night to soften them, then gently lift the cuticle on the flat end of your orange-wood stick to further loosen it Finally, rub the nail gently with absorbent cotton to remove dead cuticle

Do not cut cuticle if you can avoid doing so for if you do, you may reach the live cuticle and cut that In that case—

In case a professional manicure every week is out of the question for you, do your own nails File them in an almond or else slightly pointed shape Soak them in a bowlful of warm soapsuds for three minutes Dry them and apply a liberal amount of cuticle ointment or oil Then lift the cuticle as I have suggested Next, dip a short length of bleaching string, which can be bought at almost any cosmetic shop, in water, and rub it under your nail-tips to bleach them. Wash the nails, removing excess bleach with the brush, dry them carefully, and apply a bit of liquid polish in flesh color, pale pink or bright rose, according to your taste, at the center of each nail, taking care not to cover the matrix or nail rims. This will require a minute to dry, rub a bit of chamois over the polish to give the nails a last finishing touch

Creamed magnesia corrects oily skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach.

Oily Skin is Horrid

Doctors say oily skin is a sign of seborrhea, which, when neglected, covers the face with enlarged pores like the skin of a lemon

The newest discovery in beauty culture is that creamed magnesia corrects oily skin instantly, in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because oily skin is acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And now, dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with creamed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face.

It reduces enlarged pores to the finest, smoothest texture almost as if by magic. Being astringent, it drives away the tell-tale signs of age. You will marvel at the effect of your first five-minute facial massage.

It rejuvenates the skin so quickly that any woman can look lovely tonight, years younger. It's marvelous how magnesia dissolves blackheads, clears eruptions and corrects oily skin.

And because it is so mild, mothers use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing as a face wash for fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. Being greaseless, it cannot fatten the face or grow hair. It removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than soap or cold cream. It changes dull, sallow off-color skin to true-color clearness and rids you of freckles better than a bushel of lemons. Test it on those clogged nose pores that stand out so coldly. Let it whiten your neck. It will also keep your hands soft and white. Until recently, creamed magnesia was used only by New York doctors' wives, and nurses. But now the large drug-stores everywhere find it hard to keep enough on hand to supply the demand.

To get genuine creamed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. Remember, five minutes works wonders. So, get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight. It costs almost nothing to try. It's Guaranteed!

No More Ugly Nose Pores

DENTON'S
Facial Magnesia

Makes poor skin lovely—keeps fine skin fine

CAUTION—Modern skin-specialists say never use soap on your face if your skin is oily. All soaps contain caustic which paralyzes the little oil glands of the skin, keeping them constantly opened. That's why oily skin always gets even more greasy looking after the use of soap.

The BROADWAY MELODY by JACK LAIT

A Story of Modern Life That Contains of Thrilling Situations

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

EDDIE KERNS, song plugger, has written the music for "The Broadway Melody," a big revue, to be produced by the famous Zanfield. For two years Eddie has been engaged to "Hank" Mahoney, and now he sees his way clear to marry her. She and her younger sister, Queenie, are playing in vaudeville. Eddie tells them he has managed to place them in the revue. Eddie discovers he's lost his heart to Queenie. He keeps his secret from "Hank."

When "Hank" arrives home with Eddie she discovers Queenie in bed and is overjoyed to find she really did not go out with "Warry." The latter sends one-half of a $1000 bill to Queenie. "Hank" returns and finds the torn $1000 bill. She is worried about Queenie, who hides her sudden riches. "Warry" makes another attempt to get Queenie to go out with him. Eddie tries to persuade Queenie to have nothing to do with "Warry." He is holding her in his arms when "Hank" comes in. Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER 16

"WELL, have to get a shower down with that kid," said Hank Mahoney, more regretfully than aggressively.

"Her an' me almost had one," answered Eddie. Then fearing his double entendre might have been less subtle than intended for Queenie's hearing through the fragile bedroom door, he hastily added "She don' care nothin' for that Warriner—he's just a good-time an' she knows it."

"Did she tell you so?" followed up Hank eagerly.

"Not in so many words—but I'm pretty sure where she stands. Gee, Hank, Queen's sure strong for you."

"Well, she don't always act it."

"People can't always act the things they feel deepest."

"Why not? Seems that are on the up-an'-up ought to could. don't make no bones about how crazy I am over her—or you—do I?"

"You sure don't. But all dis-p'sitions ain't alike. Queen don' say much an' don' show much."

"She'll show plenty on that love boat," laughed Hank.

"An' she'll knock out many an eye."

Hank came nearer.

"I realise that, Eddie, darling," she sighed. "It looks like she's comin' right up to the top o' some business. An' it looks like I'm about washed up."

"Don't be a sappadil, 'Broadway Melody' is th' big shot o' the racket. You can't expect to trip off o' the family farm an' be a Zannie star. You ain through—you're jus' beginnin'—"

"No, Eddie, I've got no future in that kind o' strip poker game. I ain't snappy enough—an' I can't drag Queenie back down with me to knock around in split-week vaudeville. An' I know she can't carry me bandeuffed to her, neither. That's what I was jus' tellin' Uncle Bernie while I was out."

"What'd he say? He's a wise old agent, an' on the level—as near on the level as any agent I ever done business with—"

"He agreed with me. He said he had a cute li'l blondie that jus' closed with a night club that he could double me up with an' give me the route he had laid out for the Mahoney Sisters. We could use the name—it means something in the tanks an' with the house managers, an' takin' it off Broadway wouldn't put the flags at half mast."

"An'—is that what you're goin' to do?" asked Eddie, with a jumpy eagerness that he couldn't restrain, for he saw a solution—at least a bet to break the ice with. With Hank off on the road he could monopolize Queenie. Then, when it was too late to undo, they could penitently beg forgiveness—plead they lost their heads—even throw the blame on Hank by saying she should have known better than to leave them alone while she went off trapezing the sticks against sage advice and sincere protest.

But Hank's answer made his jaw sag and his eyes go dull;

"No. I told him I'd open with 'Broadway Melody' an' they wouldn't have to break in another girl on short notice for my measly bits an' as it would soon be time for Queenie that her sister jumped the troupe. I'll hand in my notice as soon as the curtain drops."

"An'—an' then?"

"An' then, with Queenie set an' pointed for the top o' the world, with you planted for a run an' your numbers clickin'—I'll—well, I'll just let you take up your option."

Eddie smiled—a greenish, stagey smile but a smile.

"So you see, you'll split out a standard team, Eddie. When you paged us to come to the Big Burg I had a feelin' that it meant goodby to Mahoney Sisters. Only I had it lopside-down. I was thinkin' on the train that after I mar-an' some rich bird would run her dizzy an' cop her off an' she'd bust up the twosome. Now you tell me that hasn't happened. But it's me that's goin' to do a cease f'mus'—retire an' get married—an' put the trade-mark on her."

Eddie was stumped. From the looks of this the crisis must come far sooner than he had feared. He cleared his throat.

"I—I still think that idea about tuckin' away some jack in the grouch bag an' bad. My sal'ry in the show an't high. An' you know nothin' on earth can fool you like song numbers—they sound great, but sometimes they sell punk. So, in case of sickness or somethin'—"

"Oh, I can always pick up a cabaret or club-date. Then I can stay in town—with you. Do you want me out on the Pantages time—like work a bride, next week Los Angeles?"

"Hm—well, I was thinkin' we could stay in town an' have a home business is. We could both work out our season, an' then—"

"I wouldn't like to say 'Queenie,'" spoke Hank, decisively. "As long as she's single, exposed, just a baby—I wouldn't go on the road if they headlined me over the Orpheum tour, two weeks to a stand . . . as long as I got to stay here, you and I might as well be one an' save expenses—Queenie can live with us. That'll be a handy hookup all around."

Eddie sat down. He crossed his legs after he had drawn up his sharply creased trousers. He drew out the handkerchief that had had his tie and wiped his brow; then his chin. He flipped it back, carefully down and edges showing. He took out his solid gold-plated cigarette case thumbed it open it, lit one, snapped it shut. Last of all he put the case back into his enamored lighter gave the little enemy wheel a vicious twirl, lit his cigarette.

"Hank, you're a wonder," he said, at last. "I'm a lucky guy to have you. I'll do what you say. I'll show you where to take him to tonight. Nick won't be on hand till tomorrow—big doings Saturday nights—but the extra day will give you a chance to get your hand in."

"Tonight—yes!" Gail acquiesced "I want to get a few of my things first, though. Where shall I meet you?"

"Right here" Blondy looked at her wrist watch. "It's three now. Pshaw, it's late. I'll have to go up to the Croc now and speak to Joe about you; then I'll come back and drive you down."

Lima, Washington

"My husband works in the woods and we travel from camp to camp. I got so run-down that I could not do my housework or cooking. It seemed as if I would faint when I tried to work and I would have to lie down. So my husband stayed at the camp and I with mother. She advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I had taken only three bottles I went back to keeping house and when I had taken six bottles I started waiting on table at one of the camp hotels. This is very hard work and I do my own housework too. We have a fine two-year-old boy and I take him with me. I am still taking the Compound and have recommended it to lots of women and so have my mother and my four sisters."—Mrs. Nancy Powell.

MRS. MARGARET COSTA
2911 W. 19th St., Chicago, Illinois

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before having a baby and afterwards to build up my body. I am 19 years old and have been seven years I was not strong. For the last two months before the baby came I was in the worst. My ailments kept me from doing my work. I just dragged along at it. I do housework and factory work, mostly in candy factories. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation too and have found one of the camp hotels. This is very hard work and I do my own house-work too. We have a fine two-year-old boy and I take him with me. I am still taking the Compound and have recommended it to lots of women and so have my mother and my four sisters."—Mrs. Margaret Costa.

BESSIE McKILIP

"I am a shoe-factory operator and I got into a nervous, run-down condition. I would come home at noon and lie down, and all the nourishment I could take would be a glass of milk and it would be impossible to return to the factory. I could not sleep nights and was too weak to do anything scarcely. The doctor advised me to go to the hospital and rest but told me to continue taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I refused to go to the hospital but have taken seven bottles of the Compound. I am working in the factory and doing my own work at home. I feel like a different person and look like one. What I did not start before."—Bessie McKillip.

strictly family stuff, insiders only, I asked Uncle Bernie over. He's good for three pairs o' opera glasses in a anyways. Bert, the banjo player we worked with all one season with a unit, is in. Lil an' Jim are bringin' the portable radio. An' Joe Glunts, who's been makin' our tap-shoes ever since we broke in our first routine, is goin' to bring some—sh-h-h — Scotch — the real McCoy, too, right off the boat—no knows a sailor—"

Eddie could stand no more. He arose and took his hat.

"Wait a minute. What's the 4-11"? she interposed. "What's only the high spots—wait'll you get the details—"

"No hon—I got to go. I'm feelin' like the last rose o' Summer. It's been a tough day for me—somehow—"

"Aw is my big man 'peepy an' groggy? Tell Hankie what's the matter."

She slid her arms about him. A creepy sensation flew all over him. He repelled her gently.

"Please—not now—naughty sweet of you, Hank—but—I got to breeze."

"Is it—was it somethin' Queenie said to you? You been squirmin' an' changin' knees an' shimmyin' your shoulders ever since she lammed in the bedroom. I'll have to give that girl a line—"

"No. Don't. She's O. K. It wasn' nothin' she said. I bawled her out about Warriner that's all. She took it on the chin an' said he didn't mean a thing in her life. But I guess she's fed up on us ridin' her about him. So I wouldn't jump on her if I was you, Hank. I'll—I'll see you—"

All right—on the eve o' her birthday—by jimminy crickets—it is her birthday—I'm a dope, mid-night—I got to run in an' kiss her an' wish her many happy returns."

"Go ahead" agreed Eddie, the tears in his throat. "Wish her a flock o' happiness—too—too—s-h-h—"

"Hey—wait. I'll get her to put on her kimona an' she can come out to me an' we can do it in the present an' show her the cake an' get our kisses an'—"

Eddie shook his head violently and spoke huskily, but with a bark of togetherness and authority.

"That's out! You—you k-kiss her for me . . . good night."

And he went.

"In his excitement he forgot to kiss me, too," she mused "Well, it ain't my birthday!"

First, Ziegfeld picked her for his "Follies." Next, she was chosen for "Rio Rita" and now Warner Brothers will present her in the movies. It's up Again, Down for Irene is climbing; helped by clever dancing and selective beautiful beauty.

Miss Francy says: "I don't believe in overlooking anything which helps add to your attractiveness. I am most particular about my hair and so many friends compliment me on its shine and luster that I am sure my method of caring for it is right. Nearly all the girls I know here in New York are using it, now. It is so quick. All we do is put a little Danderine on our brushes each time we dress our hair. It makes my hair easy to dress and holds it in place wonderfully. It has gotten rid of my dandruff. It keeps my hair and scalp so comfortable, that I am unconscious half as often as I did before. And best of all, it gives my hair a softer, more silky and lustrous appearance than anything I've ever found."

Danderine quickly removes that ugly film from your hair; brings out its natural color, makes it fairly sparkle! Dandruff usually disappears when you use Danderine. Always, "set" with it, stay in longer. It's delicately fragranced; isn't sticky. It's economical, one bottle will last several weeks. All drug stores recommend and guarantee it sweet, eh! Get the force of that 'Nephew'!"

McEwan nodded. "They were not on very good terms. I understand."

"What was the trouble?"

"Stark's morals, I believe. Coniston was rigid on that point."

The search for Kerry O'Neil went on through the night.

Gail went down to Mrs. Wessels who pointed to a bronze vessel on the kitchen table.

"There it is, Miss 'Ollister," she said "Dimitry's urn that's got 'is dead wife's ashes in it. I found it in 'is room last night."

Gail had an idea. After lunch she carried the urn down to the beach and buried it near a great rock.

Walking along the rocks she found herself facing a sort of tunnel blocked by a stout wooden door. There was a small barred opening in the door.

A brass plate with an inscription upon it was secured to the door. She read.

Here Died
Don Silvestre Calderon
Gentleman of Spain
1760-1846

This, then, was the pit in which the body of the man who had built the Casa de Ayer had been found. It was said that he had died of a broken heart.

The door was fastened with padlock, hasp, and staple. Involuntarily, Gail's hand went to the padlock and she shook it. To her surprise it came away in her hand. The hasp and the staple were sound. Evidently, all three had been replaced by Colonel Coniston or Dimity from time to time.

She started up the trail. She she stopped abruptly.

Two men were standing at the top. The smaller was a little ratlish man. The other had a big, heavy body. The big man was speaking.

"We shan't be able to bring the stuff in around here, now," he said, in a voice thick with passion.

The little man snickered. "Be glad we don't have to tell what we've done," he cackled. "If that fly cop knew we seen that guy bat the old man over the head we'd be in the soup for sure! What's the name of the kid they are chasin'?"

"O'Neil, I think. I hope they string him up by the neck!"

"Me, too!"

The big man moved on "Let's get out of this, Daniels. We can't do anything hanging around here!"

The other followed him.

Gail stood erect. Her face was dead white; her eyes were blazing. She could hardly credit the evidence of her senses. These two men know who had killed Dimity! They had seen it done! And "they were going of? . . . about their own affairs' They were not going to speak! They hoped Kerry would be strung "up by the neck!"

Gail saw that they were going up the trail which ascended the cliff. She must run the risk of them seeing her. She managed to follow them unseen as they climbed into a big car. With eager eyes she read the license number. Suddenly, a voice hailed her.

"Hello, old dear! Wouldn't they take you with 'em"

Gail saw a girl on a flat bowlder a dozen yards or so away.

"You must have been watching," Gail said calmly.

"I was," she admitted, frankly. "There was silence. Gail waited. 'I suppose they call you Red,' the girl drawled, at last.

Gail smiled. "Not as a rule."

"They ought to," with that, mop. Anyways, I'm going to."

Gail relaxed. "Yes, do. No one ever has. I suppose you are—"

"Blondy!" the other grinned. "We know each other, now." She flipped a cigarette over the cliff. "Say Red, you are Gail Holister, aren't you?"

The hard eyes were inscrutable. "You've had a pretty tough time of it, haven't you?"

"Perhaps I have."

Blondy looked out to sea. "The odds," she went on slowly, "seem to be against this fellow O'Neil the cops are chasin'"

There was sympathy in Blondy's tone. Gail softened and looked at her steadily for a moment.

So Gail told her new friend what there was to tell.

Gail began to weep. Blondy put her arm around the trembling shoulders and drew the girl to herself. Blondy's face changed oddly.

"So Nick saw who done it'" she muttered.

Gail stopped crying; she flung up her head, her eyes wide.

"Nick," you said. Nick who? Do you know them?"

Blondy nodded. "Pretty well—both of 'em. Joe Daniels, the little one, and—Nick Kessler, the big one. They hang around the Croc a lot."

Gail stared at her in wonder. "The Croc'" she chod.

"Uhuh! The Green Crocodile." Blondy jerked her head towards the end of the point 'I'm there, too"

"You mean you live there?"

Blondy smiled crookedly "Yes, in a way I come up here once in a while to get away from it. Men! Ugh! I hate 'em. I'm an entertainer, Red."

"I see," Gail said uncertainly.

"Now these two birds you are after," Blondy went on calmly. "You'll never shake it out of 'em. They are tough customers—bad eggs. Nick Kessler would hang his own grandmother if it paid him! I know him! He's bad! Bad."

Gail was struck by an odd note in Blondy's tone.

"You seem to know him. Who are you, anyway?" she asked sharply.

Blondy laughed. "Me! I'm Mrs. Nick Kessler."

Gail sprang to her feet, white with anger. "You—his wife! You've got me to tell you everything you wanted to know! And now you are going to warn him!"

"Aw, sit down," Blondy cried wearily. "What's a husband between friends! This is California. I got my decree a month ago. Sit down, Red!"

Gail found her temper almost as quickly as she had lost it.

"I'm sorry," she cried contritely. "I don't know what I'm saying."

Blondy nodded understandingly "I want to help you." She lit a cigarette. "Kessler is bad," she repeated. "What's more, I'm afraid of him. We must get at him some other way."

"Say, Red! How far will you go for this Kerry O'Neil of yours?"

The hunt could end only in death. Well and good. Gail had an idea. You've got the looks to put it over, but—it'll take nerve. I'm wondering if you've got the—" Blondy paused, and delicately sought a word, "the innards."

"Of course I have! What is it Blondy?" Gail was flushed with eagerness.

"Him! We'll see. Kessler is crazy about girls. New girls. Swell girls. Good-looking girls. But his special is red-headed girls—like you. Well, Nick likes his booze — too darn much for a man in his line. He's around the Green Croc a lot. He drinks there all day long, he's drunk he talks—he talks too much.

Now here's what I'm getting at. What's stopping you from getting at the Croc—one of the girls left last week. If I speak to Joe Beasley he'll give you the job—if you'll take it. If you do, I'll steer Nick on to you. He'll drink and it will be up to you to make him say what you want him to say. I'll show you where to take him to and I'll stick around out of sight, near enough to overhear what he says. I can work that part of it you've got the nerve to take, Nick. When you want me, I'll be your witness. How about it, Red?"

"I would get a few of my things first, though. Where shall I meet you?"

"Right here" Blondy looked at her wrist watch. "It's three now. Pshaw, it's late. I'll have to go up to the Croc now and speak to Joe about you; then I'll come back and drive you down."

The Return of Old King Brady, the Detective

CHAPTER 4.

Young King Brady proves he is a friend to Charley when the boy is shot by unseen assailant. Grayhill is suspected and tries to evade the outlaw gang. Harry is sent in pursuit of him and captures him.

PROBABLY it was nothing but Young King Brady's coolness which kept him from getting a bullet in the head, for Dick Wright, not waiting to make good his claim over Captain Thunderbolt would fix Harry for shooting the boy, had started in to do the job himself.

"Hold on, Dick! I never raised a hand against the boy!" cried Harry

"Then who did?" snarled Dick. "Don't know," Harry protested. Just then Charley Carter opened his eyes.

"Don't hurt Tom He didn't do it Some one fired from the tree."

Dick sent two bullets flying into the tree. "Come down out of that unless you want to die!" Nobody came.

After some confusion they carried Charley back to camp. Captain Thunderbolt came out of his tent just as they came up. "What was the firing about?" he demanded. "Ha! That boy wounded? Whose work is this?"

"We don't know, cap," replied Dick Wright. "We heard the shot but the kid says it came from some one concealed in a tree."

"Heaven help the fellow who fired the shot if I find him," said Captain Thunderbolt. "I'll take care of the boy, take him into my tent."

Dick Wright and Harry stood talking. "Our boys are all here," said Dick. "It is from the outside ones if them could have fired the shot."

Harry was relieved. If none of the gang had fired it he felt he was safe for the time being. But who could have fired it?

A tall man, mounted on a fine horse, came suddenly dashing toward them. "Don't shoot!" he cried. "The password today is Burton."

"Oh! It's you, Mr. Downs?" said Dick as they lowered their rifles.

"I want to see Captain Thunderbolt right away."

As he passed Young King Brady the latter got a good look at him. He started. "Mr. Incognito!" he muttered "But no, it can't be! Heavens!" Strange thoughts came into Harry's mind at the thought. "It is the same man I'd like to bet he is the fellow who fired the shot out of the tree and slipped away."

At last the stranger appeared and the outlaw with him. Captain Thunderbolt came out giving orders. Five minutes later the whole band was on the move. They passed up the hill and took the Burton Mills trail. Charley had been taken to a holdout to be cared for so Harry had no chance to speak with him again.

Suddenly a halt was called and Captain Thunderbolt went dashing up a low hill on the left of the trail.

It was now bright moonlight and Young King Brady was able to see the outlaw's movements. He saw him halt at the top of the hill, throw up his rifle and fire one shot into the air. Then he sat waiting for some minutes, after which he rejoined his band.

The band waited half an hour and then moved on to a point where there was a thick growth of trees into which they filed. Here they halted again.

Not long the creaking of wagon wheels was heard and Capt. Thunderbolt called out, "Ready for business, boys! Don't give the word." Two heavily loaded wagons accompanied by several horsemen were coming along the road.

All at once Capt Thunderbolt called out, "Forward!" In response the gang dashed out from cover and lined up across the road. "Halt, thar in the name of Capt. Thunderbolt!" shouted the outlaw, adding in a lower tone, "Fire high!" Every rifle spoke.

"Surrender or the next volley will sweep you fellows off the earth!" roared the outlaw, as he dashed on towards the wagons alone.

There were only six men with the wagons and they gave up without a struggle. One stocky fellow called out, "I surrender because there hain't no use standing out agin a mob like this."

"Keep your remarks to yourself, man. How much have you got on board?" commanded Capt. Thunderbolt.

"Something over 200,000, I suppose."

"Good enough Now then, you fellows keep right on your way under guard. If you do as you are told, no trouble will come to you."

And this ended it.

In a few moments the bullion train was again on its way with Dick Wright in the lead.

Capt. Thunderbolt gave orders to the gang to advance and they started in the direction of Burton Mills.

It was fortunate for Old King Brady's plans that Capt. Thunderbolt took it into his head to delay his descent by a few moments at the bottom of the hill. Here he called Harry forward. The Captain had halted his own horse at a little distance in advance of the band. Downs No. 2 was close beside him, and Harry observed that the man was studying him closely in the moonlight

"There he is, friend, look him over good. If he is the man you

From the foregoing it comes clear that a forcing take-out bid that is neither just sufficient to overcall a previous bid, nor just sufficient to reach a game contract and is thus not only a bid of a greater number of tricks than necessary to overcall the previous bid but is also other quite or over a game contract. A forcing take-out guarantees as it does a further bid in hand of bidder, one presses an absolute demand for some response from partner other than a pass.

While the partner of an original forcing bidder may exercise an option as to whether or not he should pass, assist or take-out, the partner of a forcing take-out bidder has no such option. He must either bid his original bid, assist the forcing bid or take out to another bid. Do Trump questions of whether or not his hand contains strength to assist or bid, assist or take out.

Tomorrow's article will continue the discussion of the subject of Forcing Bids.

MERELY MARGY

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.

ARAB, YOU LIKE BULL'S FIANCEE DON'T YOU? BULL WANTS TO MAKE A DEAL WITH YOU
I JUST THINK SHE'S KINDA CUTE
NOW HERE'S WHAT I'LL DO, IF YOU WILL ELOPE WITH HER, I'LL GIVE YOU MY B FLAT SAXOPHONE AND MY NEW HOCKEY STICK AND—
MY GOOD TENNIS RACQUET AND TWENTY-TWO DOLLARS IN CASH! WHAT SAY?
IF I DID THAT, THEY WOULD SAY I WAS MARRYING HER FOR YOUR MONEY! NO, NOT ME!

"MY dear, I'm on the VERGE of collAPSE at this point! I mean I'm FRACtically ready to go MAD and BITE myself because this POSsunt did PUSH and Bull and ARab had about BEAB's enGAGEment, my dear, was HONestly the most CHILDish and UNfantile perFORmance I've ever COPED with. Actually, my dear, it left me LIMP as a SHRIMP, because BULL started BRIbing Arab to ELOPE with the poisonous female, my dear, and I THOUGHT I'd have a hysTERics because the great BOze began offering Arab all his most CHERished possESsions, like his SAXophone and HOCkey stick and all, and THEN, my dear, he FInally said he'd throw in TWENty-two dollars in CASH, as if THAT prodigyAmount would SETtle the argument unQUEStionably—can you BEAR it, my dear? GOSH, it was SIMply EPic, no less! But, my dear, I NEARly gave up the GHOST at that point because ARab suddenly exclaimed he simply COULDn't COPE with the proposition because then EVErybody would conceive the idea he was MARrying the gal for BULL'S MONey or something—can you BEAR it, my dear? HONestly, I think the pipsqueak is the CAREfullest person of his REP I've ever enCOUNTered, my dear, considering his QUEStionable CHARacter and all, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

MOTHERS, BRING US YOUR PROBLEMS!

One of the more difficult problems our Vocational Department has had to solve.

MANY a little tragedy is enacted in our Vocational Guidance Department—and sometimes if you see the light burning long after midnight it is because somebody's mother is there, seeking advice.

An unfortunate case came to our attention only yesterday. A Mrs. McGillicuddy called. She was obviously upset and had been crying.

"What is the matter, Mrs. McGillicuddy?" asked one of our courteous attendants.

"My little boy," she said, coughing as though her heart would break, "likes to torment others. What will he be when he grows up?"

We tried to tell her that insurance agents play a necessary part in the economic structure. And before she left she was laughing and pinching and telling stories. We recite this incident merely to acquaint you with the work we are trying to do in this community.

NEWS PICTURE

WASHINGTON—This is the desk which Congressman Frisby says once belonged to George Washington and which now adorns the Congressman's private office. Mr. Frisby points with pride to the cigar bin, which is always open to his friends who care to drop in contributions.

There's one consolation for the fellow who flunks out of West Point; he can go right to work as a big-time movie usher.

"Telling the other guy about his sour notes," says the Rev. Wiley, "is almost as entertaining as blowing your own horn."

Professor Edward C. Elliott of Purdue says persons who frequent dance halls twice a week may be mentally weak and nervous.

Certainly. Because they are nervous, people go to dance halls; and because they go to dance halls, people are nervous.

"In fact," says the professor, "I would say that jazz has caused the whole nation to become nervous."

It would be neat if the professor would illustrate his point by suddenly going into a perfect fit of cymbal crashing.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION

Dr. Rinsewater Doakes has finally perfected a spectroscope which will magnify a mustard seed 10,000 times. The invention will permit chest doctors to diagnose heart trouble in bankers and appraisers.

"What they need in Scotland," says Joe Trnub, "is a good five-cent box of cigars."

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Mr. Auil.

I want you to correct what was in the paper Wed eve. about that fight for I did not fight as I did not want the disgrace of fighting and started home to keep from having trouble and she followed me and pushed me off the curbing and it was Mrs. Walter Pippin instead of Miss Grace Howard and she is older than I am. Linnie Watkins.

Wrinkle, Wrinkle, Movie Star,
When they appear you can't git far,
If you'd protect that school-girl skin
Beware the stuff folks serve for gin.

—G. C. K.

Says the Rev. Wiley—
A hick town is one where you don't have to stand in line for an hour to see a bum movie.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

By TEMPLE MANNING.

Travelers, especially those inclined to be epicures or gourmets, have something to look forward to if they have not yet been guests at a formal dinner in Sweden.

The most distinctive feature of a Swedish repast is the smorgasbord (sandwich table), variously described as a "super-super hors d'oeuvre," a miniature delicatessen store, and a deliberate attack on all the rules of diet. To count calories while feasting at a smorgas-bord would require the services of an expert accountant equipped with several high-speed adding machines.

The ceremony of dining begins with all the guests grouped about a small, heavily-laden table at one end of the dining room. The man take precedence. With small glasses raised high they bow elaborately to their hbst and cry "Skal" as they toss down preliminary portions of schnappe. The ladies do not indulge in this appetizing beverage, neither do they partake of the very sweet and surprisingly potent Swedish punch served at the conclusion of the dinner.

Next, plates are laden with anchovies, caviar, cheese, pickled herring, sardellen, cold meats of all sorts, sausages of every description, baked mushrooms, spiced pickles of many kinds and several varieties of bread, including always the large, grayish-brown unleavened cracker disks called knackebrod, which are profusely spread with butter and eaten at every meal.

American tourists who expect to visit Sweden this summer should manage by hook or crook to secure an invitation to a formal dinner at some substantial home, but this warning should be borne in mind: Remember that the smorgas-bord merely is a preliminary to the meal proper. The novice is loath to leave, for he can imagine nothing to follow which could be half so palatable, but in the course of time, after he has sampled most of the dishes and helped himself several times to those he likes best, he begins to blush at his capacity.

When appetites finally begin to lag, the watchful host and hostess lead the way to the dinner table, where a formal meal of many courses, not unlike those served in other lands, is spread.

'THE RETURN OF OLD KING BRADY'

say we may as well shoot him before we start on the attack," Capt. Thunderbolt sung out.

"What does this man accuse me of?" cried Harry boldly.

"He says you are one of the Brady detectives," the Captain blurted out.

"I'll fix him, the scoundrel," thought Harry. He laughed harshly and said, "Well, that's pretty good but that fellow ought to know better. You know me, Mr. Graybell. Own up, now!"

"Nonsense!" stammered Downs No. 2. "This is bluff, Captain. That fellow is Young King Brady. Search him and you'll find proofs of his identity all right."

"I'll tell you who that man really is," Harry said then. "His name is J. Steel Graybell, and he lives in New York. He is sole executor for the estate of Elisha Sniffin, deceased."

Capt. Thunderbolt gave a start. Graybell turned deathly pale. "I only want to add," said Harry calmly, "there sits the man who shot Charley Carter."

Capt. Thunderbolt turned to him. "By the way, you must have heard of Elisha Sniffin if you came from New York. Is it true that he is dead?"

"I know nothing about it—er—He may be dead or alive for all I can tell."

"It is scarcely credible that you could have lived long in New York and not have heard of Elisha Sniffin and his millions," said the outlaw coolly. "Baxter, you may get back in the ranks. I'll see you later."

Harry felt he had gone too far to retreat, so he made a parting shot. "What I say is true," he replied firmly. "I warn you to look out for that man, for your death and Charley Carter's would put him on Easy street."

"Forward, all!" was Capt. Thunderbolt's answer. His surprise came when the mill whistle began to screech.

A hurried council of war was held, to which Young King Brady was not admitted. The result was soon made plain. Two men felled a young tree near them and lopped the branches off. With this battering-ram they attacked the gate. Capt. Thunderbolt ordered Harry to keep to the saddle. Young King Brady suddenly saw the gleam of metal in the moonlight and a minute later half a dozen rifles were projected through the holes in the paling and the shots came flying three men fell on the first round, and two on the second. Great confusion followed. With wild shouts the outlaws dropped the tree trunk and scattered.

"Flames and furies!" roared Capt. Thunderbolt. "I'll balk them yet. Come on boys, we'll gather wood and burn the old fence down."

Just at this instant Graybell wheeled about and went dashing up the hill.

"After that man, young fellow!" the captain shouted. "Shoot him if you can't get him any other way."

Harry realised there was but one thing to do—and did it. He was off in hot pursuit after Graybell. His habit of close observation helped him here. He turned aside from the trail and across the open ground. Suddenly he caught sight of a deep gully with ugly rocks on the other side. "This horse ought to take it," he said to himself. "Well, here goes!" With a flying leap they took it clear. In a moment or two Harry caught sight of his man.

"I've done it! I've headed him off!" he thought jubilantly. A few moments later he struck the trail ahead of Graybell and swinging around suddenly covered the lawyer with his revolver before the man realized what was happening. "Dismount!" ordered Harry. "Throw up your hands!" Graybell was pale with fear as he slid to the ground and threw up his hands, a single shot rang out.

MERELY THE BAER FACTS

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

YOU can never tell what a collegiate will do unless you ask him to do something, and then he will do it wrong.

The boys start a lot of fads that do not mean any more than a squeal on the long distance dial.

They started that balloon trousers fad. That stopped when the man who wore the widest trousers was blown to sea.

Then they went in for raccoon coats and refused to come out.

It's all right to wear a raccoon coat. But it is dangerous to growl in one.

The latest fad on the campus esplanade is to go without hats.

Hats are supposed to protect your heads.

We admit that freshmen have nothing to protect.

When a collegian starts a fad he is like the U. S. mail. He stops for neither rain, wind, snow or lack of stamps.

A man without a hat in the rain is like a milk can without a lid. Life is going to get diluted.

He is like a stem without a flower, a handle without a ladle and a radio program without Victor Herbert's music.

The reason man wears a hat is the same routine of logical sequence which actuates a builder when he puts a roof on a house. He not only protects the attic but the more important sections of the house.

From time immemorial, which is a very reasonable moratorium, man has worn a hat. His first headgear was made of the skins of wild animals; then he wore feathers, jewels and gold.

The crown of man reached its glorious climax when Napoleon donned the crown of France and Happy Hooligan matched him with a tomato can.

Both Nappy and Happy had the same idea. Protection from the elements and stray wisps of lead pipe.

Why do you suppose King Arthur and Lancelot had their toppers made by the village blacksmith?

They knew that a crack on the helmet was worth two on the skull.

A hat not only protects you from your enemies but also from your friends. The advantage of wearing a hat is that you are always liable to get a better one at a party.

If he goes bareheaded he is liable to accumulate a sunstroke. Which, in many cases, is equivalent to frying an egg.

We should advise all young men to wear hats during snowstorms, rain and otherwise. A hat is man's best friend. And you will notice that the high death rate in many sections of the world is due to sick people in bed who refuse to wear hats.

FOSS OPPOSED TO ORIGINS ACT QUOTAS

Ex-Governor Eugene N. Foss today denied that he is now or ever has been in favor of the national origins clause of the federal immigration act.

In a letter to John J. Foley, secretary of the Associated Immigration Societies of Massachusetts, Foss wrote, "I have never, knowingly, endorsed the National Origins amendment."

The ex-governor had been previously quoted in a hearing before the Senate immigration committee as favoring the immigration quota as specified under National Origins.

The Associated American Immigration Societies in conjunction with Swedish, German and Scandinavian organizations has sent messages to every Senator in Congress as well as to President Hoover, protesting the amendment.

President Richard J. Dwyer of the Associated Immigration Societies is laying plans for a series of protest meetings.

Amesbury Fireman Drops Dead on Job

Amesbury, April 11 — Joseph Clement, 57, fireman at the Amesbury Associates building was stricken with apoplexy while at work today and died before medical aid could reach him.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Charles Grogan of Amesbury, and a brother, John of Merrimac.

MOVE TO OUST HARRIMAN AND COLE SEEN

A move to amend the public control bill so as to provide for the appointment of an entirely new board of 21 trustees, thereby preparing for the plucking of the political scalps of Brig.-Gen. Charles H. Cole and Henry I. Harriman was foreseen in legislative circles today.

Certain members of the committee on metropolitan affairs were expected to wage a lively fight to revise the subcommittee's bill which would retain the five present trustees and add to their number one more board member, to be appointed by the mayor.

Opponents of Harriman, rumored to be active in the full metropolitan affairs committee, were picked as the sponsors of the "new deal all around" campaign today.

To strengthen their case, the interested members were thought likely to be backing an anti-Cole sentiment, relying on hangovers of Republican hard feeling, which they believe might be still in existence on account of the general opposition to Governor Allen at the polls last year.

The governor, of course, has no part in any such move. He is not of a vindictive nature and undoubtedly would frown upon any such move or attempt to involve him or his appointing power in such a plan.

NEW TECHNIQUE IN ADVERTISING IS RADIO NEED

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

WHY IS IT, asks a feminine reader, that whenever I turn on the radio and want to hear a nice concert or some jazz, I must always hear about the best shock absorbers and headless matches and how they are made and why I must buy them to be completely happy? Why do the advertisers hog the programs?

WORLD SHOULD BE THRILLED

THAT'S A NATURAL question. The natural answer is that the manufacturers are paying for the radio programs and they want to get their money's worth. Many of the gentlemen directing radio presentations believe that they are not getting full value received unless they explain their products in detail, with capitals and semicolons and quotations all in their proper places. They think that their business, which is the most interesting thing in the world to them, is equally interesting to the casual listener. In like manner, the old idea of printing the picture factory on the letter-head. The manufacturer has great pride in his plant and in his product. The world should be equally enthusiastic, he thinks.

RIDING TWO MOUNTS

LONG AGO this sort of advertising appeal vanished from the printed ad page. Nowadays, however, it makes his appeal by stimulating a need in the mind or in the appetite of the consumer. It is true, however, the manufacturer is in a new and little-explored field. He is riding two mounts at the same time. He is attempting to amuse or entertain the public and he is at the same time trying to sell his goods. The amusement field is entirely unknown to him. He has little patience with the artistic demeanor which a good program imposes. He is impatient with anything meandering across. Necessarily, with programs directed by men whose outlook is connected rather than a federal, either the artistic performance suffers from too much and too crude advertising, or the advertising message is made negligible because the program has been left entirely in the hands of amusement purveyors who have little knowledge of the commercial and industrial machine. Sooner or later an ideal type of program will arise, built scientifically to create listener interest and acceptance of the product advertised, just as is done in high-grade newspaper and magazine advertising today. Pending all this, however, advertisers must learn a new technique and a new approach.

TAX REVISION IS PLEA OF HOUSEWIFE

The onerous annual task of figuring income tax, and the no less weighty task of paying it to the properly constituted authorities, are loads which do not rest entirely with the person who fills out the blank.

The wage-earner, the professional man, the physician, the teacher, and the clergyman must in most cases meet their share of governmental expenses out of their annual earnings. It remains for the housewife, however, to find ways and means to run the family machine on what remains of the income. Here is often a real problem.

She must provide the daily food for the family; replenish the clothing and bedding periodically; take measures to assure their health and education; she must look ahead to the day when "earned income" must be replaced by some other form of livelihood.

A HOUSEWIFE'S VIEWS

Typical of the averags woman's reaction to the proposed legislation concerning "earned income" with respect to federal income tax, is the following letter received from a representative housewife of Greater Boston.

The writer is Mrs. Ruth Estabrook of Reading, a former school teacher. It is interesting to have the opinion of a housewife as well as that of Mrs. Estabrook, taking into consideration as it does the problem of the "earned income" and the adult "dependent."

"In considering the revision of the income tax law," she writes, "why not ask ourselves does the income tax consider us? Does it seem just? Does it take into rigid a world; circumstances always alter cases.

"The husband man earning a salary or wage of $1500 per year, a little over $28 per week, and a married man earning an salary or wage of $3500 a year, or a little over $67 dollars a week, are exempt from paying the federal income tax. But here is the rub. Dependents in kind or number do not enter into it.

COST OF DEPENDENTS

"These salaries appear even in the face of the present high prices to be adequate for an unmarried man of modest tastes and single mode of life, to live comfortably and even save, also for a married man to support a wife and afford a few luxuries, and be able to save. "But few men, either married or single, are able to live their own lives apart from some obligation to dependents, other than children. And the dependents such as the old or the sick, cost more per person to care for than do children to raise. Children after a certain age are a help; they are an asset, they are conservative in spending. Every housewife knows that for every individual to be properly fed and clothed just so much money goes out and the prices are arbitrary, take it or leave it.

Waltham B. C. Club to Conduct Dance

The Boston College Club of Waltham will have a dance Tuesday at Nuttings-on-the-Charles. Music will be furnished by George Horwood, '27, and his band. Tickets can be obtained from J. J. Ryan, P. G. Cahill and D. J. Martin, all of senior class; Francis Higgins and Thomas Lawless of juniors, or Bart Welch of sophomores.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

POWER TRUST MOVE A THREAT TO THE PUBLIC

ONCE more the sinuous, throbbing tentacles of the Power Trust have reached out—this time to drag into possession two Boston newspapers which, henceforth, will be under control of the greatest organization for propaganda the country has ever known.

As in the past the Power Trust has subsidized newspapers in other parts of the nation to disseminate propaganda favoring its own projects and against the public good, so has it now, through the International Paper Company, executed a bold stroke in New England territory by purchase of 50 per cent of the stock of the Boston Herald and Boston Traveler.

It is significant that the deal was consummated on the eve of the most bitter power war ever waged in the Massachusetts Legislature; the battle on the bill to allow cities and towns to engage in the lighting business.

Only yesterday the hand of the Power Trust was seen in connection with this bill when its redraft was discovered to contain two jokers making it virtually impossible for cities and towns to engage in the business.

Last summer the Boston Evening American and other Hearst newspapers dragged out into the light the whole insidious propaganda machinery and system of the Power Trust and exposed them to the American public. The revelations were appalling, and the propaganda was shown to have been disseminated not only through newspapers and other publications, but in the schools.

The Hearst newspapers are not controlled by the Power Trust or any other anti-public individual, group or combine.

Is it possible that the latest newspaper acquisitions of the Power Trust will not be used to present the case of the power interests to the public in a colorful—a decidedly colorful—manner?

Other newspapers and instruments under control of the Power Trust have been so employed in the past, as proved in the Hearst expose.

Sleepy Legislators

Thanks to THEIR Drowsiness Massachusetts Will Help to Pay the Advertising Bills of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont

It must be that there are many members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives who read only the political news.

This would explain, in a measure, the vote of 90 to 102 by which the lower branch has rejected the proposal that Bay State cities and towns be permitted to appropriate public funds for publicity purposes.

The cities and towns of MAINE contribute to a common fund out of which invitations to "come to Maine"—come with your family, come for the Summer, come for Winter sports, come with your industry—have been distributed over the length and breadth of the land.

At public expense, in like manner, our neighbor, New Hampshire, supports a State Publicity bureau and keeps it busy.

Another New England state which has learned that it pays to advertise is Vermont, which issues handsome booklets on Green Mountain lakes, farms, summer places, apples, fishing and "resorts."

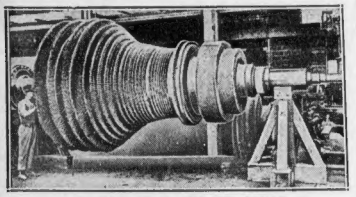
Two million tourists will come into New England this year by automobile, attracted in part by the way the NORTHERN New England States have advertised beyond the Hudson River. The Bay State will provide them with good roads.

There are 102 members of the Massachusetts House who should hear from their home towns on this question.

For, make no mistake about it, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, the merchants, the hotels and the resorts of Massachusetts—as well as the people in general who are taxed for the building and maintenance of these boulevards—will HELP to pay the advertising bills of MAINE, NEW HAMPSHIRE AND VERMONT.

Like Good Machinery?

Then Be Grateful for Good Oil



A 57-TON STEAM TURBINE ROTOR

A man deserves a good horse if he will take care of it. No man deserves to own a good machine unless he really takes care of it, and realizes the value of GOOD OIL.

To remind you of the importance of good oil, this picture of a big "rotor," most important part of a gigantic steam turbine, is published.

The size of this rotor is made clear by the man at the left. It whirls around at the rate of ten miles a minute, 600 miles an hour.

That speed would be impossible, the metal would become red hot, without good OIL.

This one machine, doing its power-producing work, day in and day out, uses TWO BARRELS OF OIL A MINUTE.

Fortunately the automobile, of which you are the captain, engineer and commander-in-chief, does not call for two barrels of oil a minute. But a reasonable amount of GOOD oil that it DOES need is as important to the machinery of your car as the two barrels of oil per minute to this gigantic turbine rotor.

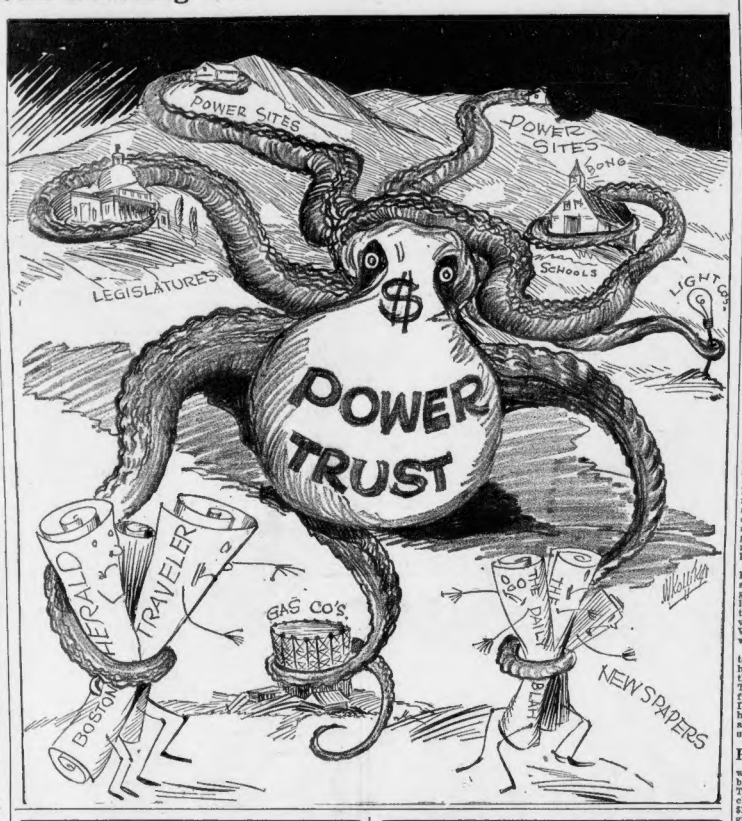
Get good oil, treat your machine kindly and remember that the BEST IS THE CHEAPEST.

In London there is a mammoth dock gate, weighing 140 tons, 230,000 pounds, moving perfectly and smoothly on a thin film of oil. Without that oil, the dock gate could not be moved. The lower picture in this column shows one of the bearings in a hydro electro unit at Niagara Falls.

PROPERLY OILED this piece of machinery weighing one million pounds whirls around one hundred times in a minute.

Still Reaching Out

By KOLLIKER



Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

"THE world is so full of BEAUTIFUL girls, I'm sure we should all be as happy as earls!"

Exactly! The world is full of beautiful girls—SO full, that they are a drug on the market, and a Plain Jane is almost a relief.

You've got to have something besides a pair of perfect legs, a piquant nose and spun-gold hair, these days, in order to draw an interested glance from a man. Every man is a bus conductor as far as women are concerned. Beautiful knees are no treat to HIM!

You've got to have individuality—PERSONALITY—in order to stand out from the crowd, or to register in any man's consciousness.

With all the first aids to beauty so easy and accessible, any girl can be be good-looking, and nearly every girl is. Even "IT" and "sex appeal" have become such common commodities that almost any little thing with one working brain cell can stimulate them.

Men are tired of being "vamped" and sick being "It-ed," anyway. They have had such an overdose of "sex-appeal" that most of them are fed up on it.

You've got to be distinctive, or surprising, or interesting or unusual in order to draw anything but a bored glance or a yawn from the average man.

Pretty faces are so plentiful that nobody even turns around to look at them. And as for clothes—anybody can "wear clothes" in the smartest sense these days.

There are no dowdy women, any more. Every girl is a fashion plate, a style show, and a work of art. You can't tell by looking at her whether she's going down town to a factory job or going to a tea dance. All women are sartorial experts.

But where every woman is charming, no woman is a charmer.

The reign of the Beautiful Dumbbell is over! Men are sick of mollusc and morons. "Cuties" and manikins are OUT! For the first time since the days of ancient Athens, men are demanding brains and intelligence and originality in women.

In order to get across today, a girl must have distinction and individuality. She must STAND for something, BE somebody. You can't win with a smile or a kiss or a pair of long eyelashes any more. They are all drugs on the market.

It is that grain of "difference" which God put into every human soul that constitutes "personality." It is that "Jamp within" which shines through, lights up the eyes and catches the imagination.

You've got to be DIFFERENT—or you won't be noticed! The way to a man's heart is no longer through his senses, but through his imagination! And it takes something besides beauty and clothes and synthetic sex appeal to get into a man's imagination. It takes personality! It takes an alarm clock to wake him up! It takes BRAINS.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

IN looking through a copy of a magazine I came upon a picture that held me.

It was the picture of the model of a hand. The big, sinewy hand of a working man.

Toil had sculptured that hand. Great cords of struggle stood out upon it like steel cables. Streaming sweat had gouged grooves in it. The skin lay in limp folds about its powerful mechanism.

Beneath the arch of the hand were tunnels and buildings—things that had grown from that hand. But beneath one part of the hand there was only a deep emptiness—symbol of that dumb hunger which lies in the heart of the toiler.

The hand was modeled by Bat Coffet. He is a poor man, a hatmaker. He works until he has saved a little, then he withdraws to model in a rough studio he has built for himself. Nearly always he models the poor working people whom he loves and understands for they are his kin.

I was deeply moved when I looked at that hand. I felt reverence and gratitude. It seemed to me that it should be placed in some fine niche in the Capitol at Washington. For it was that hand which made America.

We make a great fuss about artists and writers, actors and musicians, heroes and explorers, and other exceptional people. We act as if they were responsible for all the beauty and romance and adventures. They do contribute greatly. But the hand and the heart of the common working man contributes as greatly.

Beneath the sinewy arch of that calloused, sweaty hand, cathedrals spring to life—vast engineering projects have their being. AND WITHIN THE DUMB HUNGER OF THAT TOILING HEART STIR DREAMS OF POWER AND BEAUTY WHICH SOME DAY WILL COME TO THEIR HOUR OF BIRTH.

Remember that hunger. Respect those dreams. Do not make the common error of thinking that the cultured and the articulate have a monopoly on beauty. The hearts of the lowly also hold songs and marches and tall visions.

Thousands of letters come to this department every mo. th. These letters contain glimpses of immortal truth and loveliness.

They are written by tired mothers who snatch a minute while the baby sleeps or the stew boils. They are written in words as crude and sinewy as that sculptured hand—but those simple words carry on that deathless spark of divinity which God breathed into that first dumb mass of clay.

Think of that when next you lift your head to some white wonder thrust like a frozen fountain far into the sky—or watch the delicate, fierce span of some great bridge—or find yourself lost in the magic of immortal words. Be grateful not only to the architect, the engineer, the writer—be equally grateful to the man who mixed the mortar, riveted the steel, set the type. Within their hands as great a miracle moved as within the brains of the designer. Within their hearts as deep a hunger stirred as gnawed at the soul of the artist. We are all part of the same source from which come all miracles and dreams.

New York Day by Day

By O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 11—A New York policeman is paid a fraction more than $34 a week for his first two years of service. He then receives a slight tilt and after five years of "pounding the pavement" is paid $2500 a year—top salary for the ordinary copper.

There are about 20 rookies ready and willing to step into every available job. The glamour of "the finest" is irresistible among New York boys. They want to become plain clothes men and perform those daring deeds that thrilled them in detective fiction and movies.

The most exclusive branch of copdom is the mounted service. This means a spirited horse and generally an assignment in an aristocratic area. Those of a romantic trend always try to land there. Many distinguish themselves in gallantry by rescuing swooning ladies from runaway horses in parks.

The mounted cop receives no higher pay, but attains a swank, buckling halo not possible in other forms of copping. The grafting copper tries to reach the motorcycle squads. He knows the speeding motorist would rather pay than go to court. But a non-grafting cop usually receives more than his salary.

On Christmas, Easter and Labor Day he receives presents—mostly money and checks—from those along his beat to whom he has been of service. It is not bribery. Fifth ave. traffic cops receive the biggest gifts. One in the upper Fifties received $6000 from various friends last Christmas.

A per copper was given a trip to Paris with his wife by a millionaire. (And later was suspended on grafting charges.) The most prolific points for seasonal gifts are the Avenue, Times sq. and at the various ship docks along West st. Wall Street has its own private cops who "get the gravy."

Many coppers have used the job to go higher. Four mounted men have married "society heiresses" they met along the bridle paths. Two have been made rich by "tips" furnished by financial magnates. I am told an ex-flattie now steams his yacht into one of the fashionable mooring places. So cops get us.

PRESS agents frequently mimeograph an Odyssey to the $500-a-week chorus girl, and there may be one or two, but they are rare. There are, however, a number of chorines drawing from $100 to $150 weekly, and several show girls whose sole asset is extraordinary beauty are paid $300 a week. But their careers are brief. A few extra pounds and they are back at casting agencies. The Big Chance is in the matrimonial market. There is always an opportunity to wangle one of the front row doddrers who has a bankroll, a tin ear and perhaps a set of sclerosed arteries.

IRVING BERLIN receives most of the publicity breaks as the shining example of the fortune to be made in song writing. Yet the auctioning of Jerome Kern's books several weeks ago revealed the unobtrusive Mr. Kern has been the most fortunate of all. He has composed some of the best stuff of the musical comedies and on the side was a discriminating collector. The sale of his library brought close to two millions. Mr. Kern intends to invest the proceeds in high class securities and see a little of the world.

THE seven-year-old son of Albert Keller, the hotel man, goes to the Central Park Mall daily with his nurse to play. Recently he insisted his mother accompany him. When they stepped from their car he introduced her to a beautiful golden-haired girl of six. On the way home he inquired: "Mother, what did you think of her?"

"I think she was very lovely and charming," was the reply.

"I am relieved," said the lad. "That is your future daughter-in-law."

And that's my notion of picking them early.

ONE of the exciting bits of acting of the year was a marvelous and realistic portrayal of a drunken scene in a cafe by a young actress. To those who knew her it was interesting because until several years ago it was her nightly condition. Today she is a teetotaler cashing in on her sordid experiences.

SAYS a leading New York psychoanalyst: "No man lives who hasn't something in his past to bring the burning blush of shame."

Well, anyway, there were three other mandolin players in our town.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor Boston American:

While reading your paper I came across the article about a reporter saying that she was going to see if it is possible for a young girl to live on $14.65 per week. Yes, she'll be able to live on that amount because she's only trying it for one week. On the other hand, if she were to continue this attempt week in and week out, it, I believe, is impossible.

The girl of today doesn't want to look like an old-fashioned tin type. She wants to keep up with the style, or as near it as possible. I think it is impossible for her to even dress neatly with only $14.65 per week to live on.

After her board and room is paid—saying it costs $8, and perhaps she sends $3 home—what has she left? Just $1.65, and from that carfares have to be taken. If she rides both ways it will average $1.20 per week. Then she has 45 cents to get wild on. Where and how is she going to buy clothes?
